21ST CENTURY LEARNING

CLASSROOM INSTRUCTION THAT WORKS: ELEMENTARY

The Classroom Instruction That Works framework for research-based instruction has helped countless schools and districts on their roads to academic success. Now you can see firsthand exactly how one district is using the nine instructional strategies that have shown to raise student achievement. This DVD series brings to life the Instructional Planning Guide from the second edition. Join co-author Ceri Dean and a group of elementary, middle, or high school educators as they put the framework's strategies to work. Sit in on a planning session between Dean and the teachers and support personnel. Then watch how the lessons unfold with students—through success and challenge. And listen in as the team reflects on what they learned from using the strategies. Here's your opportunity to show teachers in your school or district how to immediately take classroom practice to a higher level of effectiveness.

ACCOUNTING AND FINANCE

OPERATIONS PROCESSES: INPUTS, TRANSFORMATIONS, OUTPUTS

At the very heart of business operations is the production of products or services - the input of raw materials, human resources and capital, and the transformation process that turns input into output. Operations extend also to areas such as transport of raw materials, distribution of products or services, advertising and marketing, finance and management. This program examines operations using four different case study businesses in New Zealand and Australia, and also explores unpacking operations, inputs, the transformation process, outputs and operations, productivity and competitiveness.

AFRICAN STUDIES

GUERRILLA GRANNIES: HOW TO LIVE IN THIS WORLD

By Ike Bertels

As a student in the 1960s, Dutch filmmaker Ike Bertels became captivated by an image she saw in a documentary about Mozambique's war for independence: three young members of the Women's Detachment of the Mozambique Liberation Front (FRELIMO) sitting on the grass and cleaning their rifles.

Almost two decades later, in 1984, she tracked down the three women: Monica, Amelia, and Maria, who were now living through the civil war that followed Mozambique's independence. Monica now served as a member of a Central Committee of the ruling FRELIMO party. Maria was in school and taking care of her five children, and Amelia worked as a seamstress. Ten years later, Bertels returned to Mozambique to document these women once again, as they navigated the new society that emerged after the conclusion of the civil war in 1992.

GUERRILLA GRANNIES depicts Bertels' third encounter with these remarkable women, all three now grandmothers in their 60s, and narrates the filmmaker's long friendship with them. Today Mozambique has a growing industrial economy and stable political system. It also ranks among the top 25 countries in the world for women, according to a 2012 World Economic Forum report, thanks largely to the efforts of pioneers like Monica, Amelia, and Maria. Their success in helping transform the county has sapped none of their ambition, and the film reveals their tireless efforts to create a better life for their children and grandchildren.

Ruminating on her decades-long relationship with these three women, Bertels catalogues everything she has learned from them, realizing that they taught her "how to live in this world." The filmmaker's loving portrait of these women shows us the powerful cross-cultural relationships that can develop between a filmmaker and subject over decades of dedicated documentation, and an unsensational side of African life to which the cinema rarely grants us access.

AMERICAN STUDIES

WAITING ROOM, THE

Directed by Peter Nicks

A day in the life of a public hospital's ER waiting room captures what it means for millions of Americans to live without health insurance.

The Waiting Room is a character-driven documentary film that uses extraordinary access to go behind the doors of an American public hospital struggling to care for a community of largely uninsured patients. The film - using a blend of cinema verite and characters' voiceover - offers a raw, intimate, and even uplifting look at how patients, staff and caregivers each cope with disease, bureaucracy and hard choices.

The ER waiting room serves as the grounding point for the film, capturing in vivid detail what it means for millions of Americans to live without health insurance. We witness the minute-by-minute Sisyphean struggle that plagues public hospitals, where emergency rooms have to field the overwhelming health care needs of the inner city. Young victims of gun violence take their turn alongside artists and small business owners who lack insurance. The film weaves the stories of several patients - as well as the hospital staff charged with caring for them - as they cope with the complexity of the nation's public health care system, while weathering the storm of a national recession.

The Waiting Room lays bare the struggle and determination of both a community and an institution coping with limited resources and no road map for navigating a health care landscape marked by historic economic and political dysfunction. It is a film about one hospital, its multifaceted community, and how our common vulnerability to illness binds us together as humans.

Reviews

- "A source of both inspiration and hope. The system may be broken, but the people are not." - Andrew O'Hehir, Salon
- "As nail-biting as any Hollywood thriller...riveting...Shows us why our country's health care system is very much in tatters." - Tribeca Film Institute
- "A rare fly-on-the-wall look inside an overwhelmed and at times overwhelming system and its impact on patients and staff." - Jeffrey Brown, PBS News Hour

BUSINESS

MINDS OF MILLIONAIRES: A BETTER LIFE FOR ELDER PEOPLE

Host by Steven Weathers
Interviewer: Xi Zhiyong

China is aging. Shanghai is aging. According to the media report, the percentage of elder people in Shanghai tops the country. Now two generations take care of one child. However, in 40 or 50 years, perhaps one couple needs to take care of four sets of parents. The elderly care issue is becoming more and more important. Apart from the government's contributions, some private companies have also taken an active part in this industry. Shanghainese Xi Zhiyong is one of them. His Cherish-Yearn is quite different from the traditional nursing houses. The beautiful environment and plentiful hobby groups help the elder people find their true happiness. Of course, the price is relatively high. Can his business model be sustainable in the future? Can the ordinary people live a decent life when they grow old?

DISCOVERING THE FUTURE: PARADIGM PIONEERS

By Joel Barker

Business used to be like the old west. After the pioneers blazed new trails, settlers behind them would call out: "Is it safe yet?" When the pioneers called back: "Yes, its safe now.", the settlers would follow, benefiting from the pioneers risk-taking.

In Paradigm Pioneers, futurist Joel Barker shows that in the 21st century, settlers will be at the highest risk. When the followers call out: "Is it safe out there?", the pioneers will answer: "Sure but there's nothing left for you!"

You don't have to create your industry's next paradigm shift to be a pioneer. But you can succeed if you know how to spot emerging paradigms and have the intuition, courage, and persistence to bring them into practical application.

Paradigm Pioneers identifies the essential traits of these trail blazers and discusses how you can become one.

NEW BUSINESS OF PARADIGMS, THE

By Joel Barker

Organizations need to innovate and change in order to survive. So why are so many people afraid of it? How do you help people open themselves up to change? Joel Barker's monumental training video, The New Business of Paradigms, explains how the rules we live by can limit our ability to innovate and be creative. In example after example, Joel demonstrates how thinking differently is necessary for us to grow as organizations and as individuals.

The New Business of Paradigms is sold as two videos in one! The Classic Edition is a remake of the best-selling original. The 21st Century Edition has all new stories and examples to illustrate recent paradigm shifts.

The New Business of Paradigms encourages viewers to take risks and recognize the benefits of finding new answers to old questions.

WORKING WITHOUT A SCRIPT

The Second City is well known for their improv comedy, their TV shows, and their scores of famous alumni. But what do you and The Second City have in common? Both of you improvise every day!

Second City Communications has facilitated successful business training for over 45 years. Their training program, Working Without A Script, teaches how the basics of improvisation will help your organization communicate better, build stronger teams, and create a positive work environment. Just like an improv troupe, organizations need to know how to work together when the plan doesn't go as planned.

Hosted by Keegan-Michael Key, TV personality and Second City alum, along with a talented ensemble cast, Working Without A Script emphasizes that good communication starts with a "yes, and" philosophy. "Yes, and" means embracing and building upon new ideas. It fosters open mindedness and empowers people to think on their feet and take risks.

When an organization commits to the "yes, and" philosophy, good things will happen!

SCHOOLS THAT CHANGE COMMUNITIES

By Bob Gliner

Schools that Change Communities profiles a diverse group of public schools that are successfully creating higher achieving students in a different way -- by turning the communities where they live into their classrooms.

The film re-imagines what education can be, visiting K-12 public schools in five states across America that are engaging students in learning by solving real-world problems in a variety of communities, from economically and environmentally challenged rural areas to poverty-stricken urban neighborhoods.

High school students in Howard, SD, build an interdisciplinary curriculum around a plan to save the town's struggling economy. In a Boston neighborhood with a high level of crime and poverty, students learn to connect the dots between what their community seems to the outside world and what it might become. In a small Appalachian town, elementary school students help clean up an adjacent stream polluted by acid mine drainage from former coal mines. In Watsonville, CA, high school students studying Roosevelt's New Deal try to come up with a New Deal for their farming community. In Cottage Grove, OR, students help create a sustainable environment, while learning valuable science, engineering and math lessons.

In the film, administrators, teachers, students and local residents discuss their projects and the value they find in place- and community-based education -- an interdisciplinary approach which emphasizes hands-on, curiosity-based investigation using surrounding neighborhoods as "living" classrooms. By confronting and solving real-world issues in their hometowns, students become more engaged in the learning process and develop a stronger sense of civic responsibility and pride. Plus, the local communities benefit, as well.

Reviews

- "Schools That Change Communities is about schools as they should be. In this pedagogical age of 'time on task,' 'direct instruction' and a short-sighted emphasis on 'Drill, Baby, Drill,' the film shows that school improvement can be healthy, engaging and lead to significant community involvement and improvement." - David Sobel, Professor of Education, Antioch University New England, Co-Author, Place and Community-based Education in Schools
- "We have been searching for a very long time for a film like this one that can help teachers, parents, and young people re-imagine what schools can and should be. We have used the film as a powerful professional development tool for teachers. As a teaching tool the film is perfect. It is not only inspirational but provides a range of powerful examples with enough nuance and detail to serve as guides for action." - Ethan Lowenstein, Professor, Teacher Education, Eastern Michigan University
- "Beautifully illustrates the power of the partnership between communities and schools; clearly demonstrating the "win-win" aspect of project based, experiential learning for students from kindergarten through high school while enriching the quality of life in the students' community. When every student has the opportunity to learn through service to his/her community, drop out rates will plummet and test scores will rise!" - Susan Meyers, Former Dean, College of Education, San Jose State University

CHINA VISIONARIES

China Visionaries is a documentary produced in commemoration of the 60th anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic of China.

China's recent history is one of profound changes. From an economy with a closed-door policy, it transformed into an open economy of rapid growth and reform. During this era of change, many overseas leaders have left their footprints on China's history, including Henry Kissinger, Nakasone Yasuhiro, and Juan Antonio Samaranch. The program will be a combination of documentary and feature interview, with each episode focusing on one character. "China Visionaries" will present a fresh look back on China's recent history, uniquely insightful with private and profound views.

CHINESE CULTURE

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 01: STANDING BY THE YELLOW RIVER

The Yellow River is the birthplace of Chinese culture. It is 5464km in length, covering an area of 795 000 km squares. Since a long time ago, many groups have settled by the River, and various cultural patterns have been developed along this cradle of Chinese civilization. The 100 thousand Salars living in the Xunhua Salar Autonomy County located in the east of Qinghai Plateau is a living example. Their hamlets and trails are all blessed with the nourishment of the River.

The Yellow River is not tame. People in the past held that it was impossible to build a bridge over it. However, the Salars can cross the River with the help of a sheepskin raft, a traditional transport which can carry passengers and goods up to ten tons, depending on the size of the raft. The Salars play an instrument called Kouxuan. This hoof-shaped instrument, made of copper or silver, is only as big as a paper clip. Its tone is plaintive and delicate.

The tenth of the twelfth month in the Hijri calendar (Islamic calendar) marks Corban Festival, or Slaughtering Festival. This traditional Islamic festival is the most important festival for the Salars. As preparation, people have to clean their houses to show respect. On the festival day, adult Muslims have to wash themselves, light incense and dress properly, with men attending a Mosque service early in the morning. Families slaughter cattle, sheep or camels to make food; sweet, cakes, noodles etc. are also prepared and shared among friends and neighbours. As an immigrant group integrating themselves into Chinese culture along the Yellow River, the Salars are striving to preserve their own culture so that it will not disappear. To extend their once rich and colourful culture, they make all the endeavours to retain their identity and live with the River.

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 02: THE WONDER OF THE TERRACES

Long standing traditional cultures can always inspire modern civilization. While only ten percent of the earth consists of flat land, sixty percent of it is water and thirty percent is mountains. Terraced field farming is actually a possible solution to food shortage.

More than 1200 years ago, the Hani, with the help of primitive tools, created the Terraces along the contour lines on the desolate Ailao Mountains in Yuanyang County. The collective endeavours of the nameless ancestors successfully turned the mountains into 170,000 acres of fields, providing nurture to more than 300, 000 villagers today.

Water is essential to farming. Although there is no reservoir in the mountains, the cloud sea and the forest stand as the important water sources for the farming activities there. The Hani regard trees as their guardian gods. Trees can store water. People's respect for trees has in a way protected the water sources in the mountains. The Honghe River below the Ailao range has been supplying moisture to the Terraces for ages – water circulates around the mountains as it vapourizes at the bottom to form clouds and fogs at the top and cools down in the forest to become water droplets and finally streams. Water, together with animal manure as fertilizers, is then collected through canals to irrigate the farmland.

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 03: MEANDERING IN THE TERRACES

Over 1200 years ago, the ancestors of the Hanis, using only hoes, turned the adverse geographical area in the Ailao Mountains in Yuanyang, Yunnan, into a large piece of farmland. By doing so, they created an ecological system along the terraces and gave birth to a piece of art featured by picturesque natural scenery. A culture surrounding the terraces has been established.

The Hanis grow red rice without insecticides. Every year when they reap, it is a chance for clansmen to foster relationships with each other since they always help each other to harvest and transfer bags of grain from the bottom of the terraces to home. Rice growing is particularly hard work in the this place. Although the mountains provide farmers with desirable fields, they also pose difficulties for them. Each step in the terraces is more than one metre high. Farmers cannot use a shoulder pole while climbing up and down the field. They always carry things on the back- bricks, crops or even children can be carried in a back basket. With loads of goods on the back, one cannot avoid bending one's head. Life on the farm has made the Hanis enduring and humble.

Traditional Hani architecture features couch grass roofs. However, since the new generation prefer modern buildings, this kind of structure, called mushroom houses, are disappearing. Li Jinsong is the eldest son of the family. To raise his family, he had gone to Shenzhen to work for 15 years and came back three years ago. He insists that the ancestral house should be preserved, regarding it as a representation of family links. Whenever there is a festival, family members gather there to have a feast, where they enjoy the red rice they grow.

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 04: LIFE ON THE ZIPLINE IN NUJIANG

The Nujiang River originates from Jirepaige on the southern slope of the Tanggula Mountain Range. Its upper reach is called "Naqu" by Tibetans, which means the black river. It flows on to Qinatong in Gongshan County, Yunnan Province, where it is called the Nujiang River by the Chinese, and "Numigua" in the Nu language, which also means the black river. Lying between the 4000m high Bilou Mountain and the 5000m high Gaoligong Mountain, it is a 300m long valley with 40 odd degree slopes on both sides, where minority groups like the Lisus, the Nus, the Dulong, the Bais and the Zangs settle. These peoples have developed farmlands, houses, churches and cable river crossings along the river, adapting their life to the adverse living conditions in this gorgeous valley.

There are no boats on the Nujiang River. Instead, people travel by overhead cable. In order to improve its people's life, the government of Nujiang Lisu Autonomous Prefecture is going to build a bridge across the river so that its people can reach the other side safely. The primitive cable crossings will soon become an activity for adventurous travellers only. In this programme, we are going to grasp the last chance to witness the exciting journey in which courageous villagers and their livestock glide across the surging waves to go to the market. The "cable doctor" will show us how he takes care of his patients and tell us more about the changes in village life. Two generations of blacksmiths making tailor-made metal hooks for the cable will also demonstrate how they make this important tool for everyone in the village.

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 05: A NEW PASSAGE LEADING TO NOWHERE

Up on a soaring escarpment of the magnificent Taihang Mountain Range, 1600m above sea level, stands a well-hidden village, Guoliang. Deep in the mountain, survival requires a willpower as strong as steel. The two passages on the escarpment have brought contrasting pictures to two generations of villagers.

Guoliang Village is located at 55km northwest of Huixian, Xinxiang city, Henan. Towards the end of the Eastern Han Dynasty, people were much exploited by landlords and bureaucrats. Their life was hard. Guoliang from Taihang decided to train his troops on the nestled cliff top and started an uprising. To commemorate him, the later generations named the village after him. Without abundant resources, villagers made everything with the stone bars from Taihang, such as stone bridges, stone houses, stone tables and stone beds. The "stone village" carries the beauty of ruggedness. Villagers in the past went up and down the hill via the Sky Ladder. All daily necessities, from seasonings to livestock, were brought up the hill through this sole passage. The Sky Ladder was built in the Ming Dynasty and was expanded during the Qing's Daoguang Era. The zigzag road was carved directly on the side of the cliff. The narrowest bit is only 0.4m wide. Anyone falling off the road would be buried in the mountain. Life up the hill was difficult. Even going to school, seeing a doctor or marrying could pose much problem. Young people began to leave the village.

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 06: THE FADING SPLENDOR

On the bank of the lower Yellow River near Lin County, Shanxi Province, there used to be a prosperous commercial port crowded with merchants and their mules and horses. The port, featured by yaodongs, house caves, was once a principal strategic place for Shanxi businessmen. Since the River suddenly narrowed down from 500m wide to 100m, and sand as well as rocks thus accumulated, people called the place Qikou, which means the moraine mouth. Freighters of all sizes could not go on and had to unload in Qikou Town so that their goods could be transported by land. Merchant teams consisting of businessmen, camels, mules and horses would bring the goods to Taiyuan, Shanghai, Tianjin or even Beijing. Goods from the east would in turn be transported to the northwest by sea. Qikou Town became a commercial port towards the end of the Ming Dynasty. In the early years of the Republic China, there were 400-odd business establishments. It was as thriving as Shanghai and Beijing at that time. Goods like oil, salt, furs and herbs were among the commonest products. There were 30-odd companies selling sesame oil alone. As described in a folk song, "Oil can be seen everywhere in Qikou. It could flood the town in three days." However, when there is a crest, there has to be a trough. This is the cycle of history. After the 1950s, since railroads and highways were opened up, and the Yellow River flooded a lot, the town became desolate. The bells on camels and horses cannot be heard anymore. But the descendants of Shanxi businessmen are still safeguarding the River.

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 07: HANDMADE JUNKS

International academic circles generally agree that historical events like the Sea Goddess Mazu in Fujian in the Song Dynasty, the junk building technology and Zheng He's voyage have all proven that Fujian is the cradle of maritime civilization.

The traditional junk building technology in Qihou Village in Zhangwan Town, Ningde City, Fujian, has been passed on for more than 650 years. The more than 40 builders all belong to the Liu family. They pass on their skills only to males, but not to females. They are masters and apprentices, fathers and sons, uncles and nephews.

According to the history of the Lius in Qihou Village in Zhangwan Town, the ancestor Liu Dimei left Minnan for Ningde by sea in order to escape from wars in the Ming Dynasty. After he had settled down, he began to make junks. His skills have been passed on for 26 generations. The watertight bulkhead technology of Chinese Fuchuan Junks originated in the Tang Dynasty. It is one of the greatest technologies in maritime history. The cabins inside the junk are independent and the hull is waterproof. Even if it runs against a rock by accident, only the affected cabin will be damaged and the junk will not sink. The design maximizes the safety of passengers and has been regarded as a state-level intangible cultural heritage item. It was inscribed in the list of Intangible Cultural Heritage in Need of Urgent Safeguarding in 2010.

CULTURAL HERITAGE - HUMAN LANDSCAPE 08: THE FLOATING VILLAGE

Cultural Heritage is a documentary program series that looks back at the history of human civilizations which have flourished along the rivers and mountainous landscapes in China. The civilizations can be traced back thousands of years ago. Their golden days have left their marks, but in face of modernization, they are being slowly washed away.

The ten episodes of the series reveal how men manage to survive upon the gifts from the nature, a manifestation of the human wisdom. The series takes us to Shanxi, where people live in simple but solid cave houses that can last for centuries, to the terraced fields in Yunan where farmers plant and harvest on the steep slopes. Villages along Nujiang, the "angry river", conquered the surging waves crossing the river with the primitive but efficient cable system. The beauty of human living in harmony with nature remains us the importance of cherishing the precious resources that the Earth generally offers us.

CLASSROOM MANAGEMENT

EFFECTIVE SUPERVISION: SUPPORTING THE ART AND SCIENCE OF TEACHING

Administrative leaders have performed observations of teaching practice for years, but those observations have often been seen as superficial at best and subjectively biased at worst. And yet, observation, when done well, can play a vital role in increasing teacher effectiveness, and has become an important part of teacher evaluation systems. What can teachers really gain from being observed in the classroom? And what should the observers be looking for? In Effective Supervision: Supporting the Art and Science of Teaching DVD, researcher and author Robert J. Marzano presents a framework for observing classroom instruction based on the questions and frameworks he first laid out in the best-selling book The Art and Science of Teaching (see inside). Marzano presents a detailed observation protocol and demonstrates how to use it—not only as a tool for analyzing classroom instruction, but also as a starting point to encourage professional dialogue among teachers. As you observe teachers in a variety of classrooms, Marzano and a panel of teachers identify critical aspects of instruction that can help all teachers move their practice from good to great. The interplay between the lessons and the discussions will yield "aha" moments for teachers of all ages and subject areas. This is an essential tool for supervisors, administrators, coaches, and teacher leaders, and can also assist professional learning communities in their ongoing work.

WORKING WITHOUT A SCRIPT

The Second City is well known for their improv comedy, their TV shows, and their scores of famous alumni. But what do you and The Second City have in common? Both of you improvise every day!

Second City Communications has facilitated successful business training for over 45 years. Their training program, Working Without A Script, teaches how the basics of improvisation will help your organization communicate better, build stronger teams, and create a positive work environment. Just like an improv troupe, organizations need to know how to work together when the plan doesn't go as planned.

Hosted by Keegan-Michael Key, TV personality and Second City alum, along with a talented ensemble cast, Working Without A Script emphasizes that good communication starts with a "yes, and" philosophy. "Yes, and" means embracing and building upon new ideas. It fosters open mindedness and empowers people to think on their feet and take risks.

When an organization commits to the "yes, and" philosophy, good things will happen!

COMMUNITY

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 1 - RETROFITTING SUBURBIA

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell
Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

The first episode investigates the connection between our nation's obesity and Type 2 Diabetes epidemic and suburban sprawl, fueled by dependency on the automobile. Communities profiled are seeking to combat the causes of diabetes by redesigning our car centric society.

Boulder, CO, redesigns the city to make bicycles a safe alternative form of transportation. Two Denver suburbs transform dead malls into mixed use and public transit-centered communities. An abandoned mall in Georgia gains new life as a K-8 charter school. And two former grad students from Georgia Tech create visionary projects that are forever changing the face of Atlanta.

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 2 - REBUILDING PLACES OF THE HEART

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

Many cities are struggling to resuscitate their dying downtowns and overcome a history of industrial pollution. Episode 2 looks at how families and young people seek to repair main street America by rebuilding places of the heart.

When U.S. industry and manufacturing collapsed or went elsewhere, cities like Elgin, IL, and Syracuse, NY, were left with the task of redefining themselves for a new paradigm. Leading the way to a greener, more sustainable Elgin is a group of high school students. Despite many innovative programs to get Syracuse back on its feet, the city struggles with the larger problem of Lake Onondaga, the most polluted lake in our nation. Local Native American Onondaga tribal leader Oren Lyons serves as conscience in the movement to cleanup the industrially polluted lake. And in Riverside, CA, 16-year old science prodigy Otana Jakpor has a personal reason for her war against air pollution and takes her battle all the way to the White House.

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 3 - SOCIAL POLICY IN CONCRETE

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

Where you live is one predictor of how long you will live. This episode explores the deadly consequences of economically challenged neighborhoods located near highly polluted areas, and urban pioneers who seek to improve the health of their challenged communities.

It should be every citizen's right to live in a clean, healthy, non-polluted environment. But that is not the case for many low-income neighborhoods in struggling industrial cities like Oakland, CA, and Detroit, MI. In Oakland, a morbidly obese grandmother struggles to raise seven grandchildren, all of whom have asthma. The city of Detroit resembles an abandoned war zone. Yet, hope blossoms in both cities. Health officials, community activists and a new breed of young Urban Pioneers are working to fix their cities by transforming urban wilderness and food deserts into inspirational new models for other troubled communities.

Reviews

- "Designing Healthy Communities directly addresses the 'soft underbelly' of our country's future, if one excuses this intentionally harsh pun; how we are building our communities is a major contributor to the obesity, diabetic and asthma epidemics, which may be the foremost threat to future of our country, its economy and quality of life." - Christopher Leinberger, President, LOCUS: Responsible Real Estate Developers and Investors
- "Designing Healthy Communities is changing the way we think about the impacts of the built environment on public health. DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 4 - SEARCHING FOR SHANGRI-LA

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

In the final episode, Dr. Jackson searches past and present America for model communities large and small that embody the intricate balance of health promoting design and human needs. Does the perfect community exist?

The journey takes him to Roseto, PA, Prairie Crossing, IL, New York City, Charleston, SC, and the forgotten 1960s urban renewal project of Lafayette Park in Detroit, MI, the brainchild of 4 men, including visionary architect, Mies van der Rohe. Also featured are walkability expert Dan Burden, and the 1960s, humorous but insightful, candid camera-style studies of people in public spaces by William Holly White.

LOVE HATE LOVE

By Dana Nachman and Don Hardy

Music by U2 and Radiohead

Love Hate Love weaves together the stories of three families whose lives were torn apart by some of the most notorious terrorist attacks of the 21st century, yet refused to succumb to despair or hate.

Liz Alderman's son Peter was murdered in the 9/11 attacks on the World Trade Center. Esther Hyman's only sister and a gifted artist was killed in the 2005 bus bombings in London. Australian business owner Ben Tullipan lost both his legs when a one-ton car bomb exploded outside a Bali night club in 2002.

Love Hate Love follows these individuals and their families across five continents, as they struggle to overcome their deep anguish and build positive, world-changing legacies for their lost loved ones.

Liz Alderman and her husband dedicate their lives to opening mental health clinics that help victims of war and terrorism return to productive lives in Cambodia, Rwanda, Uganda and Haiti.

Esther and the rest of Miriam's family are devoted to bringing the gift of good vision to thousands of children in India, inspired by how Miriam's artistic talent went unrealized until her vision was corrected.

Ben learned to walk again with two prosthetic legs and has become a championship golfer. His mission now is to give back by counseling other amputees to help them find the courage to live fully and walk again.

Love Hate Love is a moving story about the resilience of the human spirit, and the power of hope and love to transform lives and help fight hate in the world.

Reviews

- "At once wrenching and uplifting,

"Love Hate Love" is a powerful statement about the transformative power of love in the world. These stories go beyond the inspirational and reach the level of the miraculous. NURSES - IF FLORENCE COULD SEE US NOW (INSTITUTIONAL EDITION)

By Kathy Douglas

Nurses play a critical role in our health care system and have touched the lives of just about everyone, sometimes in the most intimate, difficult or joyful moments of the human experience. But most of us know little about what nurses do, or the realities of nursing.

Nurses - If Florence Could See Us Now offers a unique look into the complex and challenging world of being a nurse, exploring the many different roles that nurses play and their areas of practice, from the bedside to the board room, and the many ways that nurses impact the lives of others.

Filmed on location in 10 states across the country, more than 70 nurses are featured from hospitals, clinics, business, nursing schools and nursing associations, including bedside nurses, nurse practitioners, public health nurses, nurse educators and nurse leaders, among them the Corporate CNO of Kaiser Permanente and the CEO and President of the American Nurses Association.

The film would be useful in a wide range of health care, medical, nursing, career development, psychology and sociology classes.

Reviews

- "As a Nurse Educator, I know that this film reveals the true value and message of what nursing is. It provides insight into the real world of nursing. Everyone who is a nurse and anyone who wants to be a nurse needs to see this film." - Donna M. Nickitas, PhD, RN, NEA-BC, CNE, FAAN, Professor, Hunter College, CUNY; Deputy Executive Officer, PhD in Nursing Program, Editor, Nursing Economics
- "The most incredible depiction of nursing that I've ever seen." - Paula Dycus, DNP, RN, Tennessee
- "A heart-felt, beautiful representation of nursing." - Barbara Brewer, PhD, RN, Arizona

SCHOOLS THAT CHANGE COMMUNITIES

By Bob Gliner

Schools that Change Communities profiles a diverse group of public schools that are successfully creating higher achieving students in a different way -- by turning the communities where they live into their classrooms.

The film re-imagines what education can be, visiting K-12 public schools in five states across America that are engaging students in learning by solving real-world problems in a variety of communities, from economically and environmentally challenged rural areas to poverty-stricken urban neighborhoods.

High school students in Howard, SD, build an interdisciplinary curriculum around a plan to save the town's struggling economy. In a Boston neighborhood with a high level of crime and poverty, students learn to connect the dots between what their community seems to be to the outside world and what it might become. In a small Appalachian town, elementary school students help clean up an adjacent stream polluted by acid mine drainage from former coal mines. In Watsonville, CA, high school students studying Roosevelt's New Deal try to come up with a New Deal for their farming community. In Cottage Grove, OR, students help create a sustainable environment, while learning valuable science, engineering and math lessons.

In the film, administrators, teachers, students and local residents discuss their projects and the value they find in place- and community-based education -- an interdisciplinary approach which emphasizes hands-on, curiosity-based investigation using surrounding neighborhoods as "living" classrooms. By confronting and solving real-world issues in their hometowns, students become more engaged in the learning process and develop a stronger sense of civic responsibility and pride. Plus, the local communities benefit, as well.

Reviews

- "Schools That Change Communities is about schools as they should be. In this pedagogical age of 'time on task,' 'direct instruction' and a short-sighted emphasis on 'Drill, Baby, Drill,' the film shows that school improvement can be healthy, engaging and lead to significant community involvement and improvement." - David Sobel, Professor of Education, Antioch University New England, Co-Author, Place and Community-based Education in Schools
- "We have been searching for a very long time for a film like this one that can help teachers, parents, and young people re-imagine what schools can and should be. We have used the film as a powerful professional development tool for teachers. As a teaching tool the film is perfect. It is not only inspirational but provides a range of powerful examples with enough nuance and detail to serve as guides for action." - Ethan Lowenstein, Professor, Teacher Education, Eastern Michigan University
- "Beautifully illustrates the power of the partnership between communities and schools; clearly demonstrating the "win-win" aspect of project based, experiential learning for students from kindergarten through high school while enriching the quality of life in the students' community. When every student has the opportunity to learn through service to his/her community, drop out rates will plummet and test scores will rise!" - Susan Meyers, Former Dean, College of Education, San Jose State University

J, ROBOT: JAPANESE DESIGNERS PUSH THE BOUNDARIES OF HUMANOID A.I.

January 17, 1995: a massive earthquake hits Kobe, Japan, trapping thousands in collapsed buildings. Conventional search-and-rescue operations prove inadequate, and in the months and years that follow, a new wave of research and development in automated crisis-response technology occurs. But the robotics craze that sweeps Japan as it enters the 21st century springs from more than just the tragic quake. It also reflects the rich culture of manga comics and Japanese science fiction and the pride the Asian nation has taken for decades in creating and building high-tech products. This film explores how and why Japan has become a leader—perhaps the world leader—in humanoid robot technology. Viewers learn about ROBO-ONE, an annual event that is both a design competition and a gladiatorial showdown; the HRP Project, an ongoing robotics study completely supported by Japan's Ministry of Economy, Trade, and Industry; and the incorporation of robots into daily Japanese life, from customer service to mall security.

NEW BUSINESS OF PARADIGMS, THE

By Joel Barker

Organizations need to innovate and change in order to survive. So why are so many people afraid of it? How do you help people open themselves up to change? Joel Barker's monumental training video, The New Business of Paradigms, explains how the rules we live by can limit our ability to innovate and be creative. In example after example, Joel demonstrates how thinking differently is necessary for us to grow as organizations and as individuals.

The New Business of Paradigms is sold as two videos in one! The Classic Edition is a remake of the best-selling original. The 21st Century Edition has all new stories and examples to illustrate recent paradigm shifts.

The New Business of Paradigms encourages viewers to take risks and recognize the benefits of finding new answers to old questions.

WORKING WITHOUT A SCRIPT

The Second City is well known for their improv comedy, their TV shows, and their scores of famous alumni. But what do you and The Second City have in common? Both of you improvise every day!

Second City Communications has facilitated successful business training for over 45 years. Their training program, Working Without A Script, teaches how the basics of improvisation will help your organization communicate better, build stronger teams, and create a positive work environment. Just like an improv troupe, organizations need to know how to work together when the plan doesn't go as planned.

Hosted by Keegan-Michael Key, TV personality and Second City alum, along with a talented ensemble cast, Working Without A Script emphasizes that good communication starts with a "yes, and" philosophy. "Yes, and" means embracing and building upon new ideas. It fosters open mindedness and empowers people to think on their feet and take risks.

When an organization commits to the "yes, and" philosophy, good things will happen!

CRIMINOLOGY

TREE WORKERS' CASE, THE: HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN THE EUROPEAN UNION

Shedding light on one of the most brazen criminal enterprises to be uncovered in the E.U. in the past two decades, this film tells the story of approximately 2,000 workers—mostly from Southeast Asia, but also from Romania, the Slovak Republic, and other European countries—who were systematically exploited in the Czech Republic between 2009 and 2010. Viewers follow the efforts of lawyers and NGO members who have joined forces to investigate cases of foreign laborers being lured into menial, abusive forestry jobs. One of the workers concerned is Pham Hung Long, who, like many of his fellow Vietnamese, entered the Czech forests expecting decent pay and working conditions, only to fall into circumstances amounting to slavery. Detailed interviews with Pham, his attorneys, investigative journalists, and others are included.

DESIGN

EXTREME BY DESIGN

Directed by Ralph King Jr. and Michael Schwarz

In a Stanford multidisciplinary, project-based course, student design teams are building a better world...one product at a time.

EXTREME BY DESIGN follows Stanford business, engineering and medical students as they work in teams, using design thinking methods, to develop products and services that serve the needs of the world's poor. One student team works on a breathing device to keep babies alive in Bangladesh. Another seeks a way to store drinking water in Indonesia. The third team project is to design an IV medicine infusion pump.

It's all part of the Design for Extreme Affordability course inspired and launched by the Stanford d.school. The film begins on the first day of the course and ends eight months later as one group of students returns to Asia to test their device amid plans to launch a startup.

At a time of unprecedented global challenges EXTREME BY DESIGN shows the power of human-centered design in creating innovative, effective and sustainable solutions to the complex problems facing us.

MY BAG, MY LIFE, AND MY NEXT BAG

It's the most popular luxury item in the world. It's the second biggest earner for haute couture brands and no celebrity will step out without one. In just ten years, the handbag has become the world's top selling accessory. The more expensive it is, the more it is snapped up! It's a reflection of one's personality and sometimes a great indulgence. However, the handbag's success poses endless questions about ourselves. Why are Italian bags the most sought after? How do brands like Repetto launch their handbag and corner the market? Why is Singapore now the center for knock off bags? How have the major brands managed to make it a "must have" in just a few years? How far will women (and some men) go to acquire the bag of their dreams?

DIVERSITY TRAINING AND DEVELOPMENT

DO I KNOW YOU?

Too often we make the mistake of thinking that hiring decisions are based on a good interview or great first impression. However, interviewing and hiring the right new employee for your organization is not just about finding someone, its about getting to know them.

Like forming any good relationship, successful hiring decisions are based on a combination of facts and feelings, analyzing the information youve gathered, and listening to your intuition. Interviewing is a process, not an event.

MARS LANDING 2012: THE NEW SEARCH FOR LIFE

This one-hour special introduces the audience to a team of dedicated scientists who brought Curiosity to life. Brand new science and technology that had never been attempted made this mission a reality. This includes her custom-built heat shield designed to withstand intense 1,600 C degree heat and speeds up to 21,735 km/hr, and her state-of-the-art supersonic parachute. A revolutionary sky crane touchdown system was developed specifically for this mission, its job: get Curiosity to the surface of Mars. For the first time ever, a rover will be able to supply NASA and the rest of the world with stunning HD images from 17 different cameras. She will be able to zap rocks with a laser that's as powerful as a million light bulbs focused on the head of a pin. She will drive for hundreds of kilometers and use her massive robotic arm to drill into Gale Crater to help answer questions of life. Curiosity is set to break all records.

EARTH SCIENCE

EARTH SCIENCE: DESTRUCTION OF THE EARTH'S CRUST

Discover The Wonders of Our Earth and the forces and life forms that shape our world with the Earth Science Series. Designed specifically for the middle and high school science classroom, this series introduces students to the various geologic forces and physiographic regions that have shaped our planet. Since the formation of the earth some 4.5 billion years ago there have been many physical forces at work to wear down the surface of the earth. This program discusses these complicated landforms and explores the processes of weathering so students see first-hand the results of the many forces which break down rocks.

Discover The Wonders of Our Earth and the forces and life forms that shape our world with the Earth Science Series. Designed specifically for the middle and high school science classroom, this series introduces students to the various geologic forces and physiographic regions that have shaped our planet. This program teaches students what is beneath the earth as they explore the earth down to the core. Using data from seismic readings and deep well sampling this program explains the crust, the mantle, the Moho layer, the outer and inner core of the earth. An ideal program as an introduction to the earth and geology.

EARTH SCIENCE: RIDING THE STORM - LANDSLIDE DANGER

Discover The Wonders of Our Earth and the forces and life forms that shape our world with the Earth Science Series. Designed specifically for the middle and high school science classroom, this series introduces students to the various geologic forces and physiographic regions that have shaped our planet. A catastrophic 1982 rainstorm triggered 18,000 landslides in the Bay area, claiming 25 lives and causing $66 million in property damage. The combination of steep slopes, weak rocks and intense winter storms make the Bay area uplands an ideal setting for landslides. Landslides include both swift, potentially deadly debris flows and slower, but destructive deep-seated slides. Students will learn what USGS scientists have discovered about landslide dynamics and which slopes are most susceptible to sliding. Discover the devastating stories of the Bay area residents and learn to recognize the danger signs.

GREEN SCIENCE: HELPING PLANET EARTH - THE SCIENCE OF SUSTAINABILITY

The Earth is an amazing place. It cycles through the seasons like a giant clock. Like a heartbeat, the tides ebb and flow, summers turn to fall. It's an endless rhythm of life.

The great thing about the earth is that it renews and SUSTAINS itself throughout the cycles- if we let it. But humans are now consuming so much of the earth's resources that these cycles of renewal are having a hard time keeping up. Whether it is in the sciences of protecting our soil, or replanting our forests or in moving and protecting our water resources, you can contribute to help sustain life on Planet Earth. With your interest in the green sciences it will help insure that we stay green for generations to come. So, what science will you pursue?

It's all connected: climate, oceans, ecosystems, plant and animals. Human activity is also a big part of the mix affecting climate. And the biggest factor in human impact on the climate is our energy use. So any kind of effort to help protect our climate is going to involve energy.

Before, each part of science was a world of its own. Geologists studied rocks. Botanists studied plants. Now we are realizing that the changes taking place on Earth are much more interrelated. And to study these changes, the sciences must be interrelated too. We'll need your help! If you are passionate about design, drawing and art, use that. If you love science and technology, use that. OPERATIONS PROCESSES: INPUTS, TRANSFORMATIONS, OUTPUTS

At the very heart of business operations is the production of products or services - the input of raw materials, human resources and capital, and the transformation process that turns input into output. Operations extend also to areas such as transport of raw materials, distribution of products or services, advertising and marketing, finance and management. This program examines operations using four different case study businesses in New Zealand and Australia, and also explores unpacking operations, inputs, the transformation process, outputs and operations, productivity and competitiveness.

EDUCATION

SCHOOLS THAT CHANGE COMMUNITIES

By Bob Gliner

Schools that Change Communities profiles a diverse group of public schools that are successfully creating higher achieving students in a different way -- by turning the communities where they live into their classrooms.

The film re-imagines what education can be, visiting K-12 public schools in five states across America that are engaging students in learning by solving real-world problems in a variety of communities, from economically and environmentally challenged rural areas to poverty-stricken urban neighborhoods.

High school students in Howard, SD, build an interdisciplinary curriculum around a plan to save the town's struggling economy. In a Boston neighborhood with a high level of crime and poverty, students learn to connect the dots between what their community seems to the outside world and what it might become. In a small Appalachian town, elementary school students help clean up an adjacent stream polluted by acid mine drainage from former coal mines. In Watsonville, CA, high school students studying Roosevelt's New Deal try to come up with a New Deal for their farming community. In Cottage Grove, OR, students help create a sustainable environment, while learning valuable science, engineering and math lessons.

In the film, administrators, teachers, students and local residents discuss their projects and the value they find in place- and community-based education -- an interdisciplinary approach which emphasizes hands-on, curiosity-based investigation using surrounding neighborhoods as "living" classrooms. By confronting and solving real-world issues in their hometowns, students become more engaged in the learning process and develop a stronger sense of civic responsibility and pride. Plus, the local communities benefit, as well.

Reviews

- "Schools That Change Communities is about schools as they should be. In this pedagogical age of 'time on task,' 'direct instruction' and a short-sighted emphasis on 'Drill, Baby, Drill,' the film shows that school improvement can be healthy, engaging and lead to significant community involvement and improvement." - David Sobel, Professor of Education, Antioch University New England, Co-Author, Place and Community-based Education in Schools
- "We have been searching for a very long time for a film like this one that can help teachers, parents, and young people re-imagine what schools can and should be. We have used the film as a powerful professional development tool for teachers. As a teaching tool the film is perfect. It is not only inspirational but provides a range of powerful examples with enough nuance and detail to serve as guides for action." - Ethan Lowenstein, Professor, Teacher Education, Eastern Michigan University
- "Beautifully illustrates the power of the partnership between communities and schools; clearly demonstrating the "win-win" aspect of project based, experiential learning for students from kindergarten through high school while enriching the quality of life in the students' community. When every student has the opportunity to learn through service to his/her community, drop out rates will plummet and test scores will rise!" - Susan Meyers, Former Dean, College of Education, San Jose State University

NEW GREEN GIANTS, THE

Directed by Ted Remerowski

Examines the complex and controversial world of today's exploding organic food industry.

The last ten years have seen a phenomenal explosion in the organic food movement as it has moved from niche market to mainstream. Today, it is the fastest growing segment of the food industry attracting all of the major food corporations. THE NEW GREEN GIANTS looks at a number of these new and old organic corporations and shows how they are managing, or in some cases, failing to live up to the idealistic dreams first espoused by the back-to-the land folk of the late sixties and early seventies.

The documentary also looks at some of the bigger questions surrounding organic food. Is it really healthier? Is it truly organic? Is it possible to grow from a mom-and-pop operation to become a huge supplier of major grocery chains? Is it actually sustainable? Is it realistic to think the world can be fed organically?

The program further examines everything from stealth ownership of organic product lines by large corporations to how organic strawberries have become the focus of a major health debate and how is it that today the world's largest processor of organic food is located in a remote province of China. THE NEW GREEN GIANTS reveals the complex and controversial world of today's organic food industry.

Among those featured are: Gary Hirshberg/Stonyfield Farms, Steve Demos/Silk, Michael Potter/Eden Foods, Maggie Brown/Swanton Berry Farm, George Siemon/Organic Valley, Arran Stephens/Nature's Path, Myra Goodman/Earthbound, and Dick Peixoto/Lakeside Organic.

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

The first episode investigates the connection between our nation's obesity and Type 2 Diabetes epidemic and suburban sprawl, fueled by dependency on the automobile. Communities profiled are seeking to combat the causes of diabetes by redesigning our car centric society.

Boulder, CO, redesigns the city to make bicycles a safe alternative form of transportation. Two Denver suburbs transform dead malls into mixed use and public transit-centered communities. An abandoned mall in Georgia gains new life as a K-8 charter school. And two former grad students from Georgia Tech create visionary projects that are forever changing the face of Atlanta.

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 2 - REBUILDING PLACES OF THE HEART

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

Many cities are struggling to resuscitate their dying downtowns and overcome a history of industrial pollution. Episode 2 looks at how families and young people seek to repair main street America by rebuilding places of the heart.

When U.S. industry and manufacturing collapsed or went elsewhere, cities like Elgin, IL, and Syracuse, NY, were left with the task of redefining themselves for a new paradigm. Leading the way to a greener, more sustainable Elgin is a group of high school students. Despite many innovative programs to get Syracuse back on its feet, the city struggles with the larger problem of Lake Onondaga, the most polluted lake in our nation. Local Native American Onondaga tribal leader Oren Lyons serves as conscience in the movement to cleanup the industrially polluted lake. And in Riverside, CA, 16-year old science prodigy Otana Jakpor has a personal reason for her war against air pollution and takes her battle all the way to the White House.

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 3 - SOCIAL POLICY IN CONCRETE

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

Where you live is one predictor of how long you will live. This episode explores the deadly consequences of economically challenged neighborhoods located near highly polluted areas, and urban pioneers who seek to improve the health of their challenged communities.

It should be every citizen's right to live in a clean, healthy, non-polluted environment. But that is not the case for many low-income neighborhoods in struggling industrial cities like Oakland, CA, and Detroit, MI. In Oakland, a morbidly obese grandmother struggles to raise seven grandchildren, all of whom have asthma. The city of Detroit resembles an abandoned war zone. Yet, hope blossoms in both cities. Health officials, community activists and a new breed of young Urban Pioneers are working to fix their cities by transforming urban wilderness and food deserts into inspirational new models for other troubled communities.

Reviews

- "Designing Healthy Communities directly addresses the 'soft underbelly' of our country's future, if one excuses this intentionally harsh pun; how we are building our communities is a major contributor to the obesity, diabetic and asthma epidemics, which may be the foremost threat to future of our country, its economy and quality of life." - Christopher Leinberger, ?President, LOCUS: Responsible Real Estate Developers and Investors
- "Designing Healthy Communities is changing the way we think about the impacts of the built environment on public health. It is only a matter of time before Dr. Jackson teaches and inspires more people like myself to work towards improved public health through creative design for a better future for all." - George Maier, University of Georgia Master Program in Geography

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 4 - SEARCHING FOR SHANGRI-LA

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

In the final episode, Dr. Jackson searches past and present America for model communities large and small that embody the intricate balance of health promoting design and human needs. Does the perfect community exist?

The journey takes him to Roseto, PA, Prairie Crossing, IL, New York City, Charleston, SC, and the forgotten 1960s urban renewal project of Lafayette Park in Detroit, MI, the brainchild of 4 men, including visionary architect, Mies van der Rohe. Also featured are walkability expert Dan Burden, and the 1960s, humorous but insightful, candid camera-style studies of people in public spaces by William Holly White.

Reviews

- "Designing Healthy Communities is changing the way we think about the impacts of the built environment on public health. It is only a matter of time before Dr. Jackson teaches and inspires more people like myself to work towards improved public health through creative design for a better future for all." - George Maier, University of Georgia Master Program in Geography
- "Given its action orientation and its provision of a blueprint for civic engagement and action, Designing Healthy Communities should be of particular interest to community psychologists and applied social psychologists interested in developing approaches to prevention and empowerment with historically disenfranchised persons and others experiencing health disparities." - Michael B. Blank, PhD, Psychiatry Department, University of Pennsylvania

ETHICS AND BUSINESS LAW

WE THE OWNERS: EMPLOYEES EXPANDING THE AMERICAN DREAM

Successfully thriving in the global economy of the 21st century requires new business models and strategies to keep the American dream of opportunity and economic prosperity alive. The employee ownership model, such as ESOPs and cooperatives, is an alternative. This program features stories from the founders and employees of New Belgium Brewing, Namaste Solar, and DPR Construction, with workers giving their perspective on shared ownership structures, highly empowering corporate cultures, linked reward and risk incentives, and human capital innovation models. The film follows as decisions are made on founding the company, expansion, succession, recruitment, and layoffs.

EUROPEAN HISTORY

TREE WORKERS' CASE, THE: HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN THE EUROPEAN UNION

Shedding light on one of the most brazen criminal enterprises to be uncovered in the E.U. in the past two decades, this film tells the story of approximately 2,000 workers—mostly from Southeast Asia, but also from Romania, the Slovak Republic, and other European countries—who were systematically exploited in the Czech Republic between 2009 and 2010. Viewers follow the efforts of lawyers and NGO members who have joined forces to investigate cases of foreign laborers being lured into menial, abusive forestry jobs. One of the workers concerned is Pham Hung Long, who, like many of his fellow Vietnamese, entered the Czech forests expecting decent pay and working conditions, only to fall into circumstances amounting to slavery. Detailed interviews with Pham, his attorneys, investigative journalists, and others are included.

EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP

STRATEGY AND THE PURPOSE-DRIVEN LEADER

With Cynthia Montgomery

- How Gucci achieved the most dramatic turnaround in fashion history.
- The danger of contentment and how success can kill your organization.
- Why every single employee—at every level—must know your strategy.

In the past 25 years, thousands of articles have been written about strategy, but virtually none about the leadership vital for doing it well. Strategy has been transformed from an art to a science—but science alone is not enough. Cynthia Montgomery makes the case for bringing people back into the equation. Though you start with ideas, you need leaders to construct a company that brings these ideas to fruition. Leadership is required to define your purpose and form a management model that carries it out.

One exercise Montgomery suggests is to think about death: the death of your business. What would the world be like without it? Would it be the same? If you don't make a difference, nobody will mourn you when you're gone. And if they won't miss you then, how much do they need you now? Knowing what makes you matter to your customers is critical—but even that is not enough. Whatever constitutes strategic advantage today will eventually change. That's why you can't outsource strategy. It takes leadership to watch over an organization, make the hard choices, provide clarity and alignment, and keep everyone fired up and moving ahead together.

FASHION

MY BAG, MY LIFE, AND MY NEXT BAG

It's the most popular luxury item in the world. It's the second biggest earner for haute couture brands and no celebrity will step out without one. In just ten years, the handbag has become the world's top selling accessory. The more expensive it is, the more it is snapped up! It's a reflection of one's personality and sometimes a great indulgence. However, the handbag's success poses endless questions about ourselves. Why are Italian bags the most sought after? How do brands like Repetto launch their handbag and corner the market? Why is Singapore now the center for knock off bags? How have the major brands managed to make it a "must have" in just a few years? How far will women (and some men) go to acquire the bag of their dreams?

FINANCE AND ECONOMICS

MONEY TALKS: ACCOUNTING COMPANIES CAUGHT IN THE WAR

Accounting Companies Caught in the "War"

Five international audit companies are caught squarely in the middle of a fight between Chinese and US regulators. The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission is demanding the auditors turn over internal accounting paperwork from nine Chinese companies listed on US stock exchanges. These China-based companies are under investigation by the SEC for potential accounting fraud against U.S. investors. Chinese accounting regulators say they don't have to, because they ban these kinds of investigations. However, the audit companies are caught in the crossfire of the fight. Who will the winners be? Or, will there only be losers?

Search, but will you find

There's an established rule in business circles. If you start a new company, it is hard to challenge the current leaders in the industry. This is especially true in the B2B field, where one product can look much like another. For customers, one random search can save you much time, but it can hardly meet your specific requirement of goods and suppliers. But two young Americans have gone ahead. Why? They think they can do a lot better.

MONEY TALKS: CHINA'S OWN GPS

Hotchat: China's Own GPS

Everyone knows about GPS these days, the handy little box that finds good restaurants for you and then tells you how to drive there. But pretty soon, users in China will be learning another name too -- Beidou, the new alternative to the American Global Positioning System. All Beidou equipment connects to the Chinese satellites which can tell ships or vehicles their exact position. This function once saved Chinese sailors from assault. Keeping sailors safe is far from Beidou's only capability. Now satellite navigation systems start businesses -- rich businesses. How does China's work, and who's beginning to profit from it?

Lightbulb: No More Free Music

Plenty of people download songs from the internet without paying for them. At home you might be able to get away with it, but in public places like restaurants or shopping malls, it's obviously against the copyright law. It turns out business owners really need professional advice on paying for their background music, and for picking the right kind of music as well. But who would play the role? Is there any market potential for this?

Last month China Eastern Airlines successfully made a test flight powered by biofuel -- aviation fuel made from the oil of palm trees. The company hailed it as a 'significant milestone' in the development of sustainable fuels for aircraft in China. And now gutter oil, the waste from restaurants, is scheduled to go on trial. China's experimenting with environmentally friendly aircraft biofuels. If it all works, will the new technology better protect the environment, even help it out? Can the alternative fuels be scaled up to commercially viable quantities?

Lightbulb: Windmills in China's farming industry

When you think about farming in China, usually rice paddies, water buffalo would be the first things that pop into your head. What about windmills-something that commonly thought belong in the Netherlands, and medieval flour mills? Not much so. However, that's not the idea of one American who thinks windmills can be a very important addition to modern farming in China. He's got a factory in Wuhan making windmills, and he's trying now to sell them all over the country.

Hotchat: Green Credit Leads to a Green China?

You probably know one of the most popular words in China these days -- "PM2.5," a measurement of one of the most dangerous particles in polluted air. People in many cities have been complaining about it for two weeks. In the midst of China's winter-time pollution problems, everyone's talking about how to make the country greener. Actually six years ago the government began urging banks to adopt what it called Green Finance, and put their money into anti-pollution projects. How is the Green Credit project doing? How will China fight against environmental pollution?

Lightbulb : Taking Responsibility When Taking Money

Everyone would agree that companies exist to make money. Can companies make money and exhibit social responsibility as well? Many multinational corporations realized that their business activities affected not only their investors and managers, but also other important stakeholders -- government, customers, suppliers, trade unions and the communities in which they work. Corporate Social Responsibility is still a new idea in China and that's why a Korean expat established his consulting company in Shanghai -- to show companies the advantages of being responsible to society, to their employees, and to the government.

FOOD AND NUTRITION

NEW GREEN GIANTS, THE

Directed by Ted Remerowski

Examines the complex and controversial world of today's exploding organic food industry.

The last ten years have seen a phenomenal explosion in the organic food movement as it has moved from niche market to mainstream. Today, it is the fastest growing segment of the food industry attracting all of the major food corporations. THE NEW GREEN GIANTS looks at a number of these new and old organic corporations and shows how they are managing, or in some cases, failing to live up to the idealistic dreams first espoused by the back-to-the land folk of the late sixties and early seventies.

The documentary also looks at some of the bigger questions surrounding organic food. Is it really healthier? Is it truly organic? Is it possible to grow from a mom-and-pop operation to become a huge supplier of major grocery chains? Is it actually sustainable? Is it realistic to think the world can be fed organically?

The program further examines everything from stealth ownership of organic product lines by large corporations to how organic strawberries have become the focus of a major health debate and how is it that today the world's largest processor of organic food is located in a remote province of China. THE NEW GREEN GIANTS reveals the complex and controversial world of today's organic food industry.

Among those featured are: Gary Hirshberg/Stonyfield Farms, Steve Demos/Silk, Michael Potter/Eden Foods, Maggie Brown/Swanton Berry Farm, George Siemon/Organic Valley, Arran Stephens/Nature's Path, Myra Goodman/Earthbound, and Dick Peixoto/Lakeside Organic.

GENDER AND SEXUALITY

SPECIFIC TREATMENTS FOR SPECIFIC POPULATIONS: ACCELERATED EXPERIENTIAL DYNAMIC PSYCHOTHERAPY (AEDP) WITH A MALE CLIENT

With Diana Fosha, PhD

Accelerated experiential dynamic psychotherapy (AEDP) is both a theory of transformational process and a model of psychotherapy with three fundamental elements

- attachment
- emotion processing
- transformation

Emphasizing the regulation and processing of relatedness and emotion, AEDP integrates psychodynamic and relational elements within an affect-centered experiential framework. This approach is effective with male clients because it avoids pathologizing problems, and instead affirms strengths and reflects positive qualities to offset commonly negative expectations of treatment.

In this phase-oriented treatment, Dr. Diana Fosha first focuses on building the relationship and establishing safety, simultaneously working with anxiety and attending to interferences with core emotion. She then helps the client to gain visceral access to experience, using moment-to-moment tracking of fluctuations in affect. Next, Dr. Fosha affirms and processes the experience of transformation by drawing attention to its positive and healing effects. Finally, the client is able to construct a coherent, cohesive narrative, with newfound personal truth and strengthened sense of self.

GLOBAL ISSUES

EXTREME BY DESIGN

Directed by Ralph King Jr. and Michael Schwarz

In a Stanford multidisciplinary, project-based course, student design teams are building a better world...one product at a time.

EXTREME BY DESIGN follows Stanford business, engineering and medical students as they work in teams, using design thinking methods, to develop products and services that serve the needs of the world's poor. One student team works on a breathing device to keep babies alive in Bangladesh. Another seeks a way to store drinking water in Indonesia. The third team project is to design an IV medicine infusion pump.

It's all part of the Design for Extreme Affordability course inspired and launched by the Stanford d.school. The film begins on the first day of the course and ends eight months later as one group of students returns to Asia to test their device amid plans to launch a startup.

At a time of unprecedented global challenges EXTREME BY DESIGN shows the power of human-centered design in creating innovative, effective and sustainable solutions to the complex problems facing us.

HEALTH

NURSES - IF FLORENCE COULD SEE US NOW (INSTITUTIONAL EDITION)

By Kathy Douglas

Nurses play a critical role in our health care system and have touched the lives of just about everyone, sometimes in the most intimate, difficult or joyful moments of the human experience. But most of us know little about what nurses do, or the realities of nursing.

Nurses - If Florence Could See Us Now offers a unique look into the complex and challenging world of being a nurse, exploring the many different roles that nurses play and their areas of practice, from the bedside to the board room, and the many ways that nurses impact the lives of others.

Filmed on location in 10 states across the country, more than 70 nurses are featured from hospitals, clinics, business, nursing schools and nursing associations, including bedside nurses, nurse practitioners, public health nurses, nurse educators and nurse leaders, among them the Corporate CNO of Kaiser Permanente and the CEO and President of the American Nurses Association.

The film would be useful in a wide range of health care, medical, nursing, career development, psychology and sociology classes.

Reviews

- "As a Nurse Educator, I know that this film reveals the true value and message of what nursing is. It provides insight into the real world of nursing. Everyone who is a nurse and anyone who wants to be a nurse needs to see this film." - Donna M. Nickitas, PhD, RN, NEA-BC, CNE, FAAN, Professor, Hunter College, CUNY; Deputy Executive Officer, PhD in Nursing Program, Editor, Nursing Economics
- "The most incredible depiction of nursing that I've ever seen." - Paula Dycus, DNP, RN, Tennessee

WAITING ROOM, THE

Directed by Peter Nicks

A day in the life of a public hospital's ER waiting room captures what it means for millions of Americans to live without health insurance.

The Waiting Room is a character-driven documentary film that uses extraordinary access to go behind the doors of an American public hospital struggling to care for a community of largely uninsured patients. The film - using a blend of cinema verite and characters' voiceover - offers a raw, intimate, and even uplifting look at how patients, staff and caregivers each cope with disease, bureaucracy and hard choices.

The ER waiting room serves as the grounding point for the film, capturing in vivid detail what it means for millions of Americans to live without health insurance. We witness the minute-by-minute Sisyphean struggle that plagues public hospitals, where emergency rooms have to field the overwhelming health care needs of the inner city. Young victims of gun violence take their turn alongside artists and small business owners who lack insurance. The film weaves the stories of several patients - as well as the hospital staff charged with caring for them

- as they cope with the complexity of the nation's public health care system, while weathering the storm of a national recession.

The Waiting Room lays bare the struggle and determination of both a community and an institution coping with limited resources and no road map for navigating a health care landscape marked by historic economic and political dysfunction. It is a film about one hospital, its multifaceted community, and how our common vulnerability to illness binds us together as humans.

Reviews

- "A source of both inspiration and hope. The system may be broken, but the people are not." - Andrew O'Hehir, Salon
- "As nail-biting as any Hollywood thriller...riveting...Shows us why our country's health care system is very much in tatters." - Tribeca Film Institute
- "A rare fly-on-the-wall look inside an overwhelmed and at times overwhelming system and its impact on patients and staff." - Jeffrey Brown, PBS News Hour

SWEDISH MASSAGE: AN ESSENTIAL MESSAGE TRAINING VIDEO

In this two-section program—updated and a full hour long!—licensed massage therapist Richard Sager presents a step-by-step tutorial on how to give a Swedish massage. Demonstrating on a draped male client, he begins by clearly explaining four styles of strokes: effleurage (sliding), petrissage (kneading), friction (cross fiber), and tapotement (rhythmic tapping). Sager also advises on draping methods, on ways to rest the hands, and on oil and lotion use. In the video's second section, Sager performs a full, uninterrupted Swedish massage. With detailed instruction, tips, and recommendations, this video is perfect for bodywork students or for anyone interested in massage techniques.

HUMAN RIGHTS

GUERRILLA GRANNIES: HOW TO LIVE IN THIS WORLD

By Ike Bertels

As a student in the 1960s, Dutch filmmaker Ike Bertels became captivated by an image she saw in a documentary about Mozambique's war for independence: three young members of the Women's Detachment of the Mozambique Liberation Front (FRELIMO) sitting on the grass and cleaning their rifles.

Almost two decades later, in 1984, she tracked down the three women: Monica, Amelia, and Maria, who were now living through the civil war that followed Mozambique's independence. Monica now served as a member of a Central Committee of the ruling FRELIMO party. Maria was in school and taking care of her five children, and Amelia worked as a seamstress. Ten years later, Bertels returned to Mozambique to document these women once again, as they navigated the new society that emerged after the conclusion of the civil war in 1992.

GUERRILLA GRANNIES depicts Bertels' third encounter with these remarkable women, all three now grandmothers in their 60s, and narrates the filmmaker's long friendship with them. Today Mozambique has a growing industrial economy and stable political system. It also ranks among the top 25 countries in the world for women, according to a 2012 World Economic Forum report, thanks largely to the efforts of pioneers like Monica, Amelia, and Maria. Their success in helping transform the country has sapped none of their ambition, and the film reveals their tireless efforts to create a better life for their children and grandchildren.

Ruminating on her decades-long relationship with these three women, Bertels catalogues everything she has learned from them, realizing that they taught her "how to live in this world." The filmmaker's loving portrait of these women shows us the powerful cross-cultural relationships that can develop between a filmmaker and subject over decades of dedicated documentation, and an unsensational side of African life to which the cinema rarely grants us access.

INFLUENCE AND NEGOTIATION

INFINITE REALITY - REVEALING THE BLUEPRINTS OF OUR VIRTUAL LIVES

With Jeremy Bailenson

- Virtual reality is here, it's affordable, and it's changing business practices.
- Using virtual reality to influence, persuade and teach.
- How to turn today's video gamers into tomorrow's customers.

Children in the U.S. spend twice as much time playing video games as they do reading. Virtual reality is their medium of choice. What does that mean for your business? To reach future employees and customers, organizations can leverage virtual reality in two ways—internally, as a powerful teaching and learning tool, and externally, in marketing and communication practices. Early adopters such as Merrill Lynch, Toyota, LinkedIn and Konica Minolta are already seeing dramatic results in learning simulations, training, and marketing effectiveness.

Professor Bailenson draws on his years of psychology experiments in Stanford's Virtual Human Interaction Lab to demonstrate, in dramatic video footage, the power of virtual reality. In a virtual environment, subjects can be persuaded more easily, adopt new behaviors, and gain awareness and empathy for others. Already in practice is Bank of America's online "Face Retirement" campaign, which uses your picture to show you aging, encouraging young customers to put more money into savings.

INNOVATION

DISCOVERING THE FUTURE: PARADIGM PIONEERS

By Joel Barker

Business used to be like the old west. After the pioneers blazed new trails, settlers behind them would call out: "Is it safe yet?" When the pioneers called back: "Yes, it's safe now.", the settlers would follow, benefiting from the pioneers risk-taking.

In Paradigm Pioneers, futurist Joel Barker shows that in the 21st century, settlers will be at the highest risk. When the followers call out: "Is it safe out there?", the pioneers will answer: "Sure but there's nothing left for you!"

You don't have to create your industry's next paradigm shift to be a pioneer. But you can succeed if you know how to spot emerging paradigms and have the intuition, courage, and persistence to bring them into practical application.

Paradigm Pioneers identifies the essential traits of these trail blazers and discusses how you can become one.

DISCOVERING THE FUTURE: PARADIGM PRINCIPLES

By Joel Barker

Profound change will one day transform the way you do business. The trouble is that new paradigms show up long before they are needed or wanted. Usually, we only recognize them when we are in crisis. Paradigm Principles takes you from being aware of the power of paradigms to having the tools to harness that power. Joel Barker explains how to determine when the next paradigm is likely to appear and how to find them.

Paradigm Principles will help you on your way to the future.

How did most of a sixth grade class in a neighborhood where few students even finish high school beat the odds and go to college? How do organizations inspire their employees to be more than observers, to actively create their futures?

Vision.

The Power of Vision demonstrates that having a positive vision of the future is the most forceful motivator for change-for success-that companies, schools, communities, nations, and individuals possess.

Unforgettable and moving, The Power of Vision will inspire the people in your organization to think together, dream together, and act together to make a difference.

Having a positive vision of the future is what gives meaning to our present life. Joel Barker, The Power of Vision

YES LIVES IN THE LAND OF NO

By BJ Gallagher

It's no secret that we live in a world full of negativity. Negativity surrounds us—in our workplaces, in our communities, even in our families. But sometimes? it's our own negativity that stands between us and success.

Understanding the sources of negativity; both our own and others', is essential for people to work together effectively. Yes Lives in the Land of NO will guide participants through their own journeys in the land of NO. This animated program will help viewers deal with negativity faster, more effectively, and with a lot less discouragement and despair.

LIFE STYLE

MY BAG, MY LIFE, AND MY NEXT BAG

It's the most popular luxury item in the world. It's the second biggest earner for haute couture brands and no celebrity will step out without one. In just ten years, the handbag has become the world's top selling accessory. The more expensive it is, the more it is snapped up! It's a reflection of one's personality and sometimes a great indulgence. However, the handbag's success poses endless questions about ourselves. Why are Italian bags the most sought after? How do brands like Repetto launch their handbag and corner the market? Why is Singapore now the center for knock off bags? How have the major brands managed to make it a "must have" in just a few years? How far will women (and some men) go to acquire the bag of their dreams?

MANAGEMENT

WE THE OWNERS: EMPLOYEES EXPANDING THE AMERICAN DREAM

Successfully thriving in the global economy of the 21st century requires new business models and strategies to keep the American dream of opportunity and economic prosperity alive. The employee ownership model, such as ESOPs and cooperatives, is an alternative. This program features stories from the founders and employees of New Belgium Brewing, Namaste Solar, and DPR Construction, with workers giving their perspective on shared ownership structures, highly empowering corporate cultures, linked reward and risk incentives, and human capital innovation models. The film follows as decisions are made on founding the company, expansion, succession, recruitment, and layoffs.

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

EXTERNAL FACTORS AFFECTING BUSINESS: NATURAL DISASTERS

All businesses are exposed to some level of risk, but when a natural disaster strikes they can suddenly face a variety of unexpected and often extraordinary situations. What happens in a matter of seconds can sometimes take years to rebuild. The 2011 earthquakes in Christchurch, New Zealand and the 2009 bushfires in Victoria, Australia demonstrated how devastating natural disasters can be for small businesses. This investigative-style program explores the human cost for businesses affected by natural disasters, but also many of the logistical aspects, such as assessing property damage, dealing with insurers, monitoring finances, relaunching a business and creating disaster preparation plans.

MARRIAGE AND FAMILY THERAPY

RELATIONSHIPS: STEPFAMILY THERAPY IN PRACTICE

With Scott Browning, PhD

Stepfamilies and first families have markedly different dynamics and developmental cycles, and clinicians too often approach stepfamily work with insufficient understanding of these differences.

Scott Browning's stepfamily therapy model differs from standard practice in its emphasis on stabilizing each family subsystem before moving on to more integrative work with the whole stepfamily. This model holds that stepfamilies are especially aided by comprehending the systemic dynamics that influence them, and that this understanding mitigates frustration with differences in personality style and leads to recognizing the importance of every family member's role. Specific interventions used by the therapist normalize the experiences of family members, which helps to shift perceptions and clarify intentions.

In this demonstration, Dr. Browning helps a stepfamily to normalize their experience, increase empathy among stepfamily members, identify mistaken beliefs and misperceptions that cause tension, and uncover techniques to avert issues that create impasses.

MULTICULTURAL COUNSELING

MULTICULTURAL COUNSELING: MULTICULTURAL CARE IN PRACTICE

With Lillian Comas-Diaz, PhD

Culture influences how a client develops and expresses emotional distress and how that distress is healed through therapeutic intervention. Multicultural Care in Practice emphasizes culturally adapting psychotherapy to the needs of the clients, employing cultural competence to maximally connect with clients.

Becoming culturally competent involves a clinical commitment to gaining knowledge and awareness of the client's attitudes, which enables the clinician to intellectually, affectively, and culturally empathize with the client and demonstrate cultural sensitivity — showing awareness, interest, and commitment to recognizing the client's culture in all aspects of the therapeutic relationship.

Multicultural care practitioners recognize the importance of clinical competence. However, they also recognize the value of cultural competence, and research indicates that clients who perceive their therapist to be culturally competent have better outcomes in therapy.

In this demonstration, Dr. Lillian Comas-Diaz works with an African American woman who is making a decision about dating a partner outside of her own culture. Dr. Comas-Diaz demonstrates cultural empathy in working with the client, discussing how this decision will impact the client's relationship with her family and how to preserve that relationship while remaining true to herself.

NUTRITION

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY AND BONE HEALTH: CONVENTIONAL WISDOM, CONTEMPORARY IDEAS

By Wendy M. Kohrt

Physical Activity and Bone Health: Conventional Wisdom, Contemporary Ideas provides an overview of several of the key factors involved in bone health, particularly physical activity. Featuring the Joseph B. Wolfe Memorial Lecture from the 2012 ACSM annual meeting, the DVD discusses the fact that although, on average, pharmacologic therapies are more effective in increasing bone density than exercise, a compelling case can be advanced for physical activity as a positive measure for helping prevent osteoporosis. The DVD also addresses the issue of why bone mass density is relatively low in some athletes.

Among the topics covered:

- Prevention of osteoporosis
- Regulation of bone mass by loading
- Physical activity and bone health: conventional wisdom, contemporary ideas
- Current clinical recommendations on physical activity to prevent osteoporosis
- NSAIDs and the bone mass density response to exercise
- Why is bone mass density low in some athletes?
- Are transient exercise-induced increases in PTH good or bad?

PEOPLE AND PRODUCTIVITY

REINVENTING THE WAY WE DO BUSINESS

With Ed Whitacre

- Failures of matrix management and the need for authority with responsibility.
- How worrying about a penny (or a million dollars) can kill a successful negotiation.
- Working with the unions to get GM back on track.

Growth by acquisition has its place, but at some point you actually have to run your business. CEOs who buy, buy, buy with no real vision or strategy in mind can quickly end up with a big operational mess on their hands. That model is not sustainable, and nonstop deal-making just wears people down. Instead, understand your purpose, keep it simple, stick to your vision and business strategy, and execute the best you can. Anything that gets in the way of this has to go.

In this session, Jon Levin, Stanford University Professor and Economics Department Chair, leads an insightful interview in which Ed Whitacre shares, vividly, leadership lessons learned and the core management principles that catapulted him to 17 years as chairman and CEO of AT&T and, temporarily lured out of retirement, as chairman and CEO of General Motors Co.

PROFESSIONALISM

DO I KNOW YOU?

Too often we make the mistake of thinking that hiring decisions are based on a good interview or great first impression. However, interviewing and hiring the right new employee for your organization is not just about finding someone, its about getting to know them.

Like forming any good relationship, successful hiring decisions are based on a combination of facts and feelings, analyzing the information youve gathered, and listening to your intuition. Interviewing is a process, not an event.

TRUTH SERIES, THE

The Truth Series is comprised of four complete training topics presented in a highly entertaining manner. The films quickly address important aspects of business professionalism. Each program is less than five minutes long and the training session can be taught in 30 minutes.

The Truth About E-mail: Tens of millions of people use e-mail every day. While e-mail allows us to communicate with a simple keystroke, it can also cause problems. This film helps people use e-mail in a productive, efficient manner.

The Truth About Business Casual: Many organizations have implemented some form of business casual dress policy. While this gives employees more freedom, it also gives rise to concern. Learn how to prevent problems.

The Truth About The Internet: About two-thirds of companies currently monitor their employees Internet use. Their concern is well founded. Most employees use the Internet at work for legitimate reasons. However, improper use can cause trouble for themselves and their organization.

The Truth About Customer Service: Providing excellent customer service is more than compensating after the fact for poor service. When provided with great customer service, customers are more likely to be satisfied and remain loyal.

PSYCHOLOGY

LOVE HATE LOVE

By Dana Nachman and Don Hardy

Music by U2 and Radiohead

Love Hate Love weaves together the stories of three families whose lives were torn apart by some of the most notorious terrorist attacks of the 21st century, yet refused to succumb to despair or hate.

Liz Alderman's son Peter was murdered in the 9/11 attacks on the World Trade Center. Esther Hyman's only sister and a gifted artist was killed in the 2005 bus bombings in London. Australian business owner Ben Tullipan lost both his legs when a one-ton car bomb exploded outside a Bali night club in 2002.

Love Hate Love follows these individuals and their families across five continents, as they struggle to overcome their deep anguish and build positive, world-changing legacies for their lost loved ones.

Liz Alderman and her husband dedicate their lives to opening mental health clinics that help victims of war and terrorism return to productive lives in Cambodia, Rwanda, Uganda and Haiti.

Esther and the rest of Miriam's family are devoted to bringing the gift of good vision to thousands of children in India, inspired by how Miriam's artistic talent went unrealized until her vision was corrected.

Ben learned to walk again with two prosthetic legs and has become a championship golfer. His mission now is to give back by counseling other amputees to help them find the courage to live fully and walk again.

Love Hate Love is a moving story about the resilience of the human spirit, and the power of hope and love to transform lives and help fight hate in the world.

Reviews

- "At once wrenching and uplifting, "Love Hate Love" is a powerful statement about the transformative power of love in the world. These stories go beyond the inspirational and reach the level of the miraculous. You can't watch this film and not come away with the urge to take action yourself – no matter how small." - Marshall Fine, Star Magazine Film Critic
- "Each narrative honors the human ability to turn tragedy into a force for good." - J. Weekly, Jewish Weekly Newspaper of Northern California
- "An inspiring documentary that opens our eyes to the many blessings we have, and shows that no matter who we are and what we've been through, there's always a reason to survive and, more importantly, that there is always room to help this universe become a better place." - Doha Film Institute

NURSES - IF FLORENCE COULD SEE US NOW (INSTITUTIONAL EDITION)

By Kathy Douglas

Nurses play a critical role in our health care system and have touched the lives of just about everyone, sometimes in the most intimate, difficult or joyful moments of the human experience. But most of us know little about what nurses do, or the realities of nursing.

Nurses - If Florence Could See Us Now offers a unique look into the complex and challenging world of being a nurse, exploring the many different roles that nurses play and their areas of practice, from the bedside to the board room, and the many ways that nurses impact the lives of others.

Filmed on location in 10 states across the country, more than 70 nurses are featured from hospitals, clinics, business, nursing schools and nursing associations, including bedside nurses, nurse practitioners, public health nurses, nurse educators and nurse leaders, among them the Corporate CNO of Kaiser Permanente and the CEO and President of the American Nurses Association.

The film would be useful in a wide range of health care, medical, nursing, career development, psychology and sociology classes.

Reviews

- "As a Nurse Educator, I know that this film reveals the true value and message of what nursing is. It provides insight into the real world of nursing. Everyone who is a nurse and anyone who wants to be a nurse needs to see this film."
- Donna M. Nickitas, PhD, RN, NEA-BC, CNE, FAAN, Professor, Hunter College, CUNY; Deputy Executive Officer, PhD in Nursing Program, Editor, Nursing Economics
- "The most incredible depiction of nursing that I've ever seen." - Paula Dycus, DNP, RN, Tennessee
- "A heart-felt, beautiful representation of nursing." - Barbara Brewer, PhD, RN, Arizona

SALES AND CUSTOMER SERVICE TRAINING

ARE YOU WITH ME?

Why does there seem to be one set of rules for how we behave when we're with people and a whole different set for how we act when we're on the phone?

When we interact with others on the phone, it's easy to lose touch with the basic rules of common courtesy. The truth is, all too often, the telephone becomes an easy excuse for not connecting with people.

Are You With Me? is a refresher of how to use common courtesy on the phone.

SOCIAL ENVIRONMENTS AND CHANGE

J, ROBOT: JAPANESE DESIGNERS PUSH THE BOUNDARIES OF HUMANOID A.I.

January 17, 1995: a massive earthquake hits Kobe, Japan, trapping thousands in collapsed buildings. Conventional search-and-rescue operations prove inadequate, and in the months and years that follow, a new wave of research and development in automated crisis-response technology occurs. But the robotics craze that sweeps Japan as it enters the 21st century springs from more than just the tragic quake. It also reflects the rich culture of manga comics and Japanese science fiction and the pride the Asian nation has taken for decades in creating and building high-tech products. This film explores how and why Japan has become a leader—perhaps the world leader—in humanoid robot technology. Viewers learn about ROBO-ONE, an annual event that is both a design competition and a gladiatorial showdown; the HRP Project, an ongoing robotics study completely supported by Japan's Ministry of Economy, Trade, and Industry; and the incorporation of robots into daily Japanese life, from customer service to mall security.

TREE WORKERS' CASE, THE: HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN THE EUROPEAN UNION

Shedding light on one of the most brazen criminal enterprises to be uncovered in the E.U. in the past two decades, this film tells the story of approximately 2,000 workers—mostly from Southeast Asia, but also from Romania, the Slovak Republic, and other European countries—who were systematically exploited in the Czech Republic between 2009 and 2010. Viewers follow the efforts of lawyers and NGO members who have joined forces to investigate cases of foreign laborers being lured into menial, abusive forestry jobs. One of the workers concerned is Pham Hung Long, who, like many of his fellow Vietnamese, entered the Czech forests expecting decent pay and working conditions, only to fall into circumstances amounting to slavery. Detailed interviews with Pham, his attorneys, investigative journalists, and others are included.

WE THE OWNERS: EMPLOYEES EXPANDING THE AMERICAN DREAM

Successfully thriving in the global economy of the 21st century requires new business models and strategies to keep the American dream of opportunity and economic prosperity alive. The employee ownership model, such as ESOPs and cooperatives, is an alternative. This program features stories from the founders and employees of New Belgium Brewing, Namaste Solar, and DPR Construction, with workers giving their perspective on shared ownership structures, highly empowering corporate cultures, linked reward and risk incentives, and human capital innovation models. The film follows as decisions are made on founding the company, expansion, succession, recruitment, and layoffs.

GREEN SCIENCE: HELPING PLANET EARTH - THE SCIENCES OF SUSTAINABILITY

The Earth is an amazing place. It cycles through the seasons like a giant clock. Like a heartbeat, the tides ebb and flow, summers turn to fall. It's an endless rhythm of life.

The great thing about the earth is that it renews and SUSTAINS itself throughout the cycles- if we let it. But humans are now consuming so much of the earth's resources that these cycles of renewal are having a hard time keeping up. Whether it is in the sciences of protecting our soil, or replanting our forests or in moving and protecting our water resources, you can contribute to help sustain life on Planet Earth. With your interest in the green sciences it will help insure that we stay green for generations to come. So, what science will you pursue?

GREEN SCIENCE: HELPING PLANET EARTH - THE SCIENCES OF CLIMATE CHANGE

It's all connected: climate, oceans, ecosystems, plant and animals. Human activity is also a big part of the mix affecting climate. And the biggest factor in human impact on the climate is our energy use. So any kind of effort to help protect our climate is going to involve energy.

Before, each part of science was a world of its own. Geologists studied rocks. Botanists studied plants. Now we are realizing that the changes taking place on Earth are much more interrelated. And to study these changes, the sciences must be interrelated too. We'll need your help! If you are passionate about design, drawing and art, use that. If you love science and technology, use that. Research, writing, story telling, every one of these talents will be required to help assist. Can we count on you?

GREEN SCIENCE: HELPING PLANET EARTH - THE SCIENCES OF ENDANGERED SPECIES

We share our world with many other living creatures. But sometimes we find ourselves in a battle over resources and living space. And it is a battle that is driving much of our wildlife to the brink of extinction.

It can start in school with books and assignments or experiments on how we can make this a healthier world for all of us- plants, animals and humans. Without this knowledge, we are just well intentioned but powerless to affect change. The world needs people who understand how this delicate web of life can be protected and renewed for future generations. See what you can find out about the natural world around you. Only then can you truly make a difference.

SOCIOLOGY

WAITING ROOM, THE

Directed by Peter Nicks

A day in the life of a public hospital's ER waiting room captures what it means for millions of Americans to live without health insurance.

The Waiting Room is a character-driven documentary film that uses extraordinary access to go behind the doors of an American public hospital struggling to care for a community of largely uninsured patients. The film - using a blend of cinema verite and characters' voiceover - offers a raw, intimate, and even uplifting look at how patients, staff and caregivers each cope with disease, bureaucracy and hard choices.

The ER waiting room serves as the grounding point for the film, capturing in vivid detail what it means for millions of Americans to live without health insurance. We witness the minute-by-minute Sisyphean struggle that plagues public hospitals, where emergency rooms have to field the overwhelming health care needs of the inner city. Young victims of gun violence take their turn alongside artists and small business owners who lack insurance. The film weaves the stories of several patients - as well as the hospital staff charged with caring for them - as they cope with the complexity of the nation's public health care system, while weathering the storm of a national recession.

The Waiting Room lays bare the struggle and determination of both a community and an institution coping with limited resources and no road map for navigating a health care landscape marked by historic economic and political dysfunction. It is a film about one hospital, its multifaceted community, and how our common vulnerability to illness binds us together as humans.

STRATEGY AND CHANGE

STRATEGY AND THE PURPOSE-DRIVEN LEADER

With Cynthia Montgomery

- How Gucci achieved the most dramatic turnaround in fashion history.
- The danger of contentment and how success can kill your organization.
- Why every single employee—at every level—must know your strategy.

In the past 25 years, thousands of articles have been written about strategy, but virtually none about the leadership vital for doing it well. Strategy has been transformed from an art to a science—but science alone is not enough. Cynthia Montgomery makes the case for bringing people back into the equation. Though you start with ideas, you need leaders to construct a company that brings these ideas to fruition. Leadership is required to define your purpose and form a management model that carries it out.

One exercise Montgomery suggests is to think about death: the death of your business. What would the world be like without it? Would it be the same? If you don't make a difference, nobody will mourn you when you're gone. And if they won't miss you then, how much do they need you now? Knowing what makes you matter to your customers is critical—but even that is not enough. Whatever constitutes strategic advantage today will eventually change. That's why you can't outsource strategy. It takes leadership to watch over an organization, make the hard choices, provide clarity and alignment, and keep everyone fired up and moving ahead together.

STRETCH BREAK: BRIEF YOGA ROUTINES FOR THE OFFICE, HOME, AND TRAVEL

By Rick Devereux

Stretch Break: Brief Yoga Routines for the Office, Home, and Travel is designed as a resource for people who, for whatever reason, can't make the time to go to a health/fitness club on a particular day. The DVD is the perfect tool for individuals who want to loosen up and relieve the tension and stiffness in their body that has accumulated, regardless of where they are or what they might be doing. The DVD features three separate yoga routines. The first involves performing general stretching exercises to awaken and loosen up the body. The second encompasses a yoga routine for relieving the tightness in the lower back and hamstrings. The third entails a chair routine that targets relieving tension in the nupper body.

Among the topics covered:

- General awakening and loosening-up routine
- Relieving tight hamstrings and lower back
- Relieving upper-body, shoulder, elbow, wrist, back, and neck tension (chair routine)

SUSTAINABILITY

EXTREME BY DESIGN

Directed by Ralph King Jr. and Michael Schwarz

In a Stanford multidisciplinary, project-based course, student design teams are building a better world...one product at a time.

EXTREME BY DESIGN follows Stanford business, engineering and medical students as they work in teams, using design thinking methods, to develop products and services that serve the needs of the world's poor. One student team works on a breathing device to keep babies alive in Bangladesh. Another seeks a way to store drinking water in Indonesia. The third team project is to design an IV medicine infusion pump.

It's all part of the Design for Extreme Affordability course inspired and launched by the Stanford d.school. The film begins on the first day of the course and ends eight months later as one group of students returns to Asia to test their device amid plans to launch a startup.

At a time of unprecedented global challenges EXTREME BY DESIGN shows the power of human-centered design in creating innovative, effective and sustainable solutions to the complex problems facing us.

SUSTAINABILITY / SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 1 - RETROFITTING SUBURBIA

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

The first episode investigates the connection between our nation's obesity and Type 2 Diabetes epidemic and suburban sprawl, fueled by dependency on the automobile. Communities profiled are seeking to combat the causes of diabetes by redesigning our car centric society.

Boulder, CO, redesigns the city to make bicycles a safe alternative form of transportation. Two Denver suburbs transform dead malls into mixed use and public transit-centered communities. An abandoned mall in Georgia gains new life as a K-8 charter school. And two former grad students from Georgia Tech create visionary projects that are forever changing the face of Atlanta.

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 2 - REBUILDING PLACES OF THE HEART

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

Many cities are struggling to resuscitate their dying downtowns and overcome a history of industrial pollution. Episode 2 looks at how families and young people seek to repair main street America by rebuilding places of the heart.

When U.S. industry and manufacturing collapsed or went elsewhere, cities like Elgin, IL, and Syracuse, NY, were left with the task of redefining themselves for a new paradigm. Leading the way to a greener, more sustainable Elgin is a group of high school students. Despite many innovative programs to get Syracuse back on its feet, the city struggles with the larger problem of Lake Onondaga, the most polluted lake in our nation. Local Native American Onondaga tribal leader Oren Lyons serves as conscience in the movement to cleanup the industrially polluted lake. And in Riverside, CA, 16-year old science prodigy Otana Jakpor has a personal reason for her war against air pollution and takes her battle all the way to the White House.

DESIGNING HEALTHY COMMUNITIES: PART 3 - SOCIAL POLICY IN CONCRETE

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

Where you live is one predictor of how long you will live. This episode explores the deadly consequences of economically challenged neighborhoods located near highly polluted areas, and urban pioneers who seek to improve the health of their challenged communities.

It should be every citizen's right to live in a clean, healthy, non-polluted environment. But that is not the case for many low-income neighborhoods in struggling industrial cities like Oakland, CA, and Detroit, MI. In Oakland, a morbidly obese grandmother struggles to raise seven grandchildren, all of whom have asthma. The city of Detroit resembles an abandoned war zone. Yet, hope blossoms in both cities. Health officials, community activists and a new breed of young Urban Pioneers are working to fix their cities by transforming urban wilderness and food deserts into inspirational new models for other troubled communities.

Reviews

- "Designing Healthy Communities directly addresses the 'soft underbelly' of our country's future, if one excuses this intentionally harsh pun; how we are building our communities is a major contributor to the obesity, diabetic and asthma epidemics, which may be the foremost threat to future of our country, its economy and quality of life." - Christopher Leinberger, ?President, LOCUS: Responsible Real Estate Developers and Investors
- "Designing Healthy Communities is changing the way we think about the impacts of the built environment on public health. It is only a matter of time before Dr. Jackson teaches and inspires more people like myself to work towards improved public health through creative design for a better future for all." - George Maier, University of Georgia Master Program in Geography

Directed by Harry Wiland and Dale Bell

Hosted by author and national health expert Dr. Richard Jackson, MD, MPH

In the final episode, Dr. Jackson searches past and present America for model communities large and small that embody the intricate balance of health promoting design and human needs. Does the perfect community exist?

The journey takes him to Roseto, PA, Prairie Crossing, IL, New York City, Charleston, SC, and the forgotten 1960s urban renewal project of Lafayette Park in Detroit, MI, the brainchild of 4 men, including visionary architect, Mies van der Rohe. Also featured are walkability expert Dan Burden, and the 1960s, humorous but insightful, candid camera-style studies of people in public spaces by William Holly White.

Reviews

SUSTAINABLE AGRICULTURE

NEW GREEN GIANTS, THE

Directed by Ted Remerowski

Examines the complex and controversial world of today's exploding organic food industry.

The last ten years have seen a phenomenal explosion in the organic food movement as it has moved from niche market to mainstream. Today, it is the fastest growing segment of the food industry attracting all of the major food corporations. THE NEW GREEN GIANTS looks at a number of these new and old organic corporations and shows how they are managing, or in some cases, failing to live up to the idealistic dreams first espoused by the back-to-the land folk of the late sixties and early seventies.

The documentary also looks at some of the bigger questions surrounding organic food. Is it really healthier? Is it truly organic? Is it possible to grow from a mom-and-pop operation to become a huge supplier of major grocery chains? Is it actually sustainable? Is it realistic to think the world can be fed organically?

The program further examines everything from stealth ownership of organic product lines by large corporations to how organic strawberries have become the focus of a major health debate and how is it that today the world's largest processor of organic food is located in a remote province of China. THE NEW GREEN GIANTS reveals the complex and controversial world of today's organic food industry.

Among those featured are: Gary Hirshberg/Stonyfield Farms, Steve Demos/Silk, Michael Potter/Eden Foods, Maggie Brown/Swanton Berry Farm, George Siemon/Organic Valley, Arran Stephens/Nature's Path, Myra Goodman/Earthbound, and Dick Peixoto/Lakeside Organic.

SYSTEMS OF PSYCHOTHERAPY

With Scott Browning, PhD

Stepfamilies and first families have markedly different dynamics and developmental cycles, and clinicians too often approach stepfamily work with insufficient understanding of these differences.

Scott Browning's stepfamily therapy model differs from standard practice in its emphasis on stabilizing each family subsystem before moving on to more integrative work with the whole stepfamily. This model holds that stepfamilies are especially aided by comprehending the systemic dynamics that influence them, and that this understanding mitigates frustration with differences in personality style and leads to recognizing the importance of every family member's role. Specific interventions used by the therapist normalize the experiences of family members, which helps to shift perceptions and clarify intentions.

In this demonstration, Dr. Browning helps a stepfamily to normalize their experience, increase empathy among stepfamily members, identify mistaken beliefs and misperceptions that cause tension, and uncover techniques to avert issues that create impasses.

SPECIFIC TREATMENTS FOR SPECIFIC POPULATIONS: ACCELERATED EXPERIENTIAL DYNAMIC PSYCHOTHERAPY (AEDP) WITH A MALE CLIENT

With Diana Fosha, PhD

Accelerated experiential dynamic psychotherapy (AEDP) is both a theory of transformational process and a model of psychotherapy with three fundamental elements

- attachment
- emotion processing
- transformation

Emphasizing the regulation and processing of relatedness and emotion, AEDP integrates psychodynamic and relational elements within an affect-centered experiential framework. This approach is effective with male clients because it avoids pathologizing problems, and instead affirms strengths and reflects positive qualities to offset commonly negative expectations of treatment.

In this phase-oriented treatment, Dr. Diana Fosha first focuses on building the relationship and establishing safety, simultaneously working with anxiety and attending to interferences with core emotion. She then helps the client to gain visceral access to experience, using moment-to-moment tracking of fluctuations in affect. Next, Dr. Fosha affirms and processes the experience of transformation by drawing attention to its positive and healing effects. Finally, the client is able to construct a coherent, cohesive narrative, with newfound personal truth and strengthened sense of self.

TECHNOLOGY

J, ROBOT: JAPANESE DESIGNERS PUSH THE BOUNDARIES OF HUMANOID A.I.

January 17, 1995: a massive earthquake hits Kobe, Japan, trapping thousands in collapsed buildings. Conventional search-and-rescue operations prove inadequate, and in the months and years that follow, a new wave of research and development in automated crisis-response technology occurs. But the robotics craze that sweeps Japan as it enters the 21st century springs from more than just the tragic quake. It also reflects the rich culture of manga comics and Japanese science fiction and the pride the Asian nation has taken for decades in creating and building high-tech products. This film explores how and why Japan has become a leader—perhaps the world leader—in humanoid robot technology. Viewers learn about ROBO-ONE, an annual event that is both a design competition and a gladiatorial showdown; the HRP Project, an ongoing robotics study completely supported by Japan's Ministry of Economy, Trade, and Industry; and the incorporation of robots into daily Japanese life, from customer service to mall security.

UNDERSTANDING BY DESIGN

UNPACKING THE COMMON CORE STANDARDS USING THE UBD FRAMEWORK

If your school or district is like most others, you're addressing the challenge of implementing new curriculum and assessments based on the Common Core State Standards. Use this DVD to help you scale up your efforts systemwide. That's where this DVD comes to your rescue. Drawing from the popular Understanding by Design (UbD) framework, the DVD explains an approach to implementing the Common Core standard that ensures a results-oriented curriculum with fidelity to the standards. UbD authors Grant Wiggins and Jay McTighe introduce key concepts from UbD that apply to implementing the Common Core standards. Experts on curriculum design explain how to unpack standards for developing a powerful improvement plan focused on desired outcomes. Hear educators from the field describe using the UbD framework to align curriculum with assessments. Explore how to use UbD's backward-design approach to create units and lessons that reflect the Common Core standards' rigorous goals. Both English language arts and literacy standards and content and practice standards for mathematics are addressed throughout the program. Whether your school is already well versed in UbD framework or not, showing this DVD at your next Common Core or professional learning community (PLC) meeting is an ideal way to get staff members at all levels to focus on a practical plan for meeting the challenge of the Common Core standards.

48

US HISTORY

BOURBON & KENTUCKY: A HISTORY DISTILLED

Explores how distilling originated in Kentucky with its first settlers in 1775 and takes the viewer to the sites of Central Kentucky's earliest distilling operations. Magnificent portraits and landscapes adorn the production. Original documents relating to Kentucky's earliest distillers, and pages from Kentucky's earliest newspapers, such as the Lexington Kentucky Gazette and the Paris Western Citizen document on the screen the progression of whiskey-making to the stage where the best of it was old, smooth, amber in color and known as Bourbon. Bourbon and Kentucky illustrate clearly that Bourbon whiskey is, in fact inextricably intertwined with Kentucky and America's history.

CIVIL WAR: UNSUNG HERO - THE HORSE IN THE CIVIL WAR

Presents the story of the millions of horses (and mules) that were used in all branches of both armies during the Civil War. It discusses how the horses were procured and trained for field use, how they were fed and maintained, and the toll taken on them due to service in the field. Millions of horses were utilized by the armies in all theaters of war. In large armies, anywhere from forty to sixty thousand horses (and mules) were used in the infantry, cavalry, artillery and quartermaster services. Regularly feeding, shoeing and maintaining the horses and mules was a near impossible task. As a result, thousands of horses were lost due to incapacity and malnutrition. Thousands more were lost on battlefields. Memoirs of soldiers are read, telling the stories of the horses they recalled and the incredible sacrifices of them. In the end, more than 1,500,000 horses (and mules) died during the War. Some of the War's most famous horses Cincinnati, Winchester, Old Baldy, Highfly, Little Sorrell, and Traveller, to name a few, are highlighted. The stories of each of them touched the heart. Hundreds of magnificent period photographs, drawings, illustrations, along with selected re-enactment scenes are employed to graphically illustrate the role of the horse. Filming of action scenes took place at the re-enactments of the battles of Richmond and Perryville in Kentucky, as well as Shaker Village at South Union, Kentucky and Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.

HENRY CLAY AND THE STRUGGLE FOR THE UNION: THE COMPROMISE OF 1850 TO THE CIVIL WAR

Henry Clay and the Struggle for the Union explores the turbulent forty years leading up to the Civil War; it is the first documentary ever produced on Henry Clay of Kentucky, the most dominant public figure in the formulation of compromises in 1820, 1833 and 1850 that narrowly avoided disunion and civil war. This program examines the impact of slavery on the expansion of the Nation westward and how conflict between North and South, free States and slave States, was, in the end, irrepressible. Lavishly illustrated with stunning period photographs and art, footage of the Old Senate Chamber in the Nation's Capitol, dramatic scenes of Clay and his senate colleagues played by skilled professional actors and enhanced by brilliant maps, Henry Clay and the Struggle for the Union brings the history of the years before the Civil War alive on the screen. Students Will Learn: What triggered the need for compromise in 1850? What compromise measures did Henry Clay propose? Besides Henry Clay, what other senators played key roles in the Compromises of 1820 and 1833, and what roles did they play with respect to the Compromise of 1850? What United States senator saved Clay's compromise? What events, after the Compromise of 1850, helped Plunge the Nation into civil war? Where did the first hostile act of the Civil War occur?

WOMEN'S STUDIES

GUERRILLA GRANNIES: HOW TO LIVE IN THIS WORLD

By Ike Bertels

As a student in the 1960s, Dutch filmmaker Ike Bertels became captivated by an image she saw in a documentary about Mozambique's war for independence: three young members of the Women's Detachment of the Mozambique Liberation Front (FRELIMO) sitting on the grass and cleaning their rifles.

Almost two decades later, in 1984, she tracked down the three women: Monica, Amelia, and Maria, who were now living through the civil war that followed Mozambique's independence. Monica now served as a member of a Central Committee of the ruling FRELIMO party. Maria was in school and taking care of her five children, and Amelia worked as a seamstress. Ten years later, Bertels returned to Mozambique to document these women once again, as they navigated the new society that emerged after the conclusion of the civil war in 1992.

GUERRILLA GRANNIES depicts Bertels' third encounter with these remarkable women, all three now grandmothers in their 60s, and narrates the filmmaker's long friendship with them. Today Mozambique has a growing industrial economy and stable political system. It also ranks among the top 25 countries in the world for women, according to a 2012 World Economic Forum report, thanks largely to the efforts of pioneers like Monica, Amelia, and Maria. Their success in helping transform the country has sapped none of their ambition, and the film reveals their tireless efforts to create a better life for their children and grandchildren.

Ruminating on her decades-long relationship with these three women, Bertels catalogues everything she has learned from them, realizing that they taught her "how to live in this world." The filmmaker's loving portrait of these women shows us the powerful cross-cultural relationships that can develop between a filmmaker and subject over decades of dedicated documentation, and an unsensational side of African life to which the cinema rarely grants us access.

中國全景 - 中級漢語 1

《中國全景 - 中級漢語》與《中國全景 - 初級漢語》相銜接, 適合於學過 1000 個左右基本詞彙、掌握漢語基礎語法的學習者使用。

從外國人在中國的生活、工作、旅遊等方面選取話題, 突出實用性和針對性; 以情景會話的方式來表現, 情節生動, 富有時代感。

課文講解漢英並用, 力求避免語法術語, 並以實例模仿為主, 使學習者易於理解和掌握。

通過大量理解和模仿性練習, 鞏固當課所學內容。

本 CD 內容不僅包括每課生詞、課文、練習的錄音, 還專門為全書練習提供了參考答案, 由播音員朗讀, 可供課堂教學和自學做聽說練習材料。

China Panorama - Intermediate Chinese 1

As the follow-up to China Panorama - Approaching Chinese, this course is designed for individuals with basic knowledge of grammar and a vocabulary of 1,000 words.

Adapted from the experiences of foreigners in China, the conversations are highly practical and cover many themes.

The texts are explained in both Chinese and English without much grammatical terminology. By reproducing model patterns, language acquisition becomes easier.

Exercises are designed for better comprehension and assimilation so that learners can improve their language naturally.

The CDs contain not only the audio materials of new words, texts and exercises, but also keys to all the exercises. Read by newscasters, the materials are ideal for both classroom teaching and self-study.

紀錄觀點 - 蘭陵劇坊

導演：李中

創立於 1980 年的蘭陵劇坊，對於吳靜吉博士而言是一種實驗。劇坊本身的存在不在於成就一個劇團，而是提供一群有志表演的年輕人有一個環境可以專注在戲劇表演本身，在當時解嚴前渴求改變的氣氛下，蘭陵的出現無疑是回應了台灣社會的藝術啟蒙潮流。然而蘭陵真正的影響，卻是團解散之後的二十年，當時的團員各自發展，奠定了台灣藝術表演的基石，其中李國修、金世傑、劉若瑀、趙自強等人各立門戶，卻發展截然不同風格的表演方式。

在 1991 年解散的蘭陵，讓蘭陵的精神開枝散葉，影響了往後二十年台灣的表演文化。本紀錄片將由這些蘭陵人身上檢視蘭陵的時代意義，回歸至蘭陵劇坊對於這些蘭陵人生命經驗上的衝擊。

Founded in 1979, Lanlin Theatre Troupe is the first ever theatre group in Taiwan. It has inspired and nurtured important figures in the theater industry of Taiwan during the past 30 years. This is a story about the rise of a generation and the fall of the oldest theatre troupe in Taiwan. Having spent their early life in this troupe, these artists are devoted to bridging traditional Chinese theater and modern art form.

紀錄觀點 - 時間之旅

導演：周東彥

有一種夢想是倒立著的。從小練雜技特技的台灣年輕人黃明正，在 26 歲時告訴身邊所有人，他要用賣藝環遊世界十五年，拍攝一系列倒立的照片，周邊的人對他的夢想藍圖感到不可置信。兩年後，他完成五個月的環台計畫並創作《透明之國》演出，隨即獲得台新藝術獎的肯定，接著出書、策劃雜技藝術節、並且登上 TED 講述自己的夢想……

耗時兩年，記錄一種台灣馬戲特技新世代的體現方式，呈現黃明正的全台灣街頭演出計畫全貌。掌聲歡呼的背後，是一個人孤獨磨練。鏡頭下，黃明正靜靜地爬上巨岩、攀上吊橋、在車水馬龍中倒立著，世界彷彿為了這屏息的一刻、一幕，而暫時停止了轉動。

Ming-Cheng started his ambitious plan about shooting photos of himself handstanding in different places around the world at the age of 26. In 2-3 years, his first voyage was accomplished with a series of breathtaking photos featuring characteristic Taiwanese scenery, street view and local people. His production "Transparent Kingdom" inspired by this journey was awarded the Jury's special award of the remarkable Taishin Arts Award.

We see him climbing on a gigantic rock, jumping on a bridge, or being in the morning traffic of Taipei. Ming-Cheng handstands with his dream. What lies behind this typical inspiring story of chasing dreams is the unbearable loneliness during the voyage in time, or in life.

紀錄觀點 - 幸運號碼

台北市動物之家一公立的流浪動物收容所，收容了上百隻的流浪狗。進到收容所的狗沒有名字，只會有一組依照收容日期編排的號碼跟著牠們，直到離開收容所的那一天為止。每一天，牠們的三餐和生活，有工作人員和志工來照料，但只有極少數的狗能在收容所長住下來，對於其他大多數的狗來說，牠們無法預料自己的未來，決定離開收容所的時間和方式——或許重回人間，也可能是天堂。

人類的社會，為什麼會需要狗的收容所？收容所為何而存在？是為狗，還是為人？本片以使用狗的高度去拍攝，希望從「狗的立場」出發，感受眼前的世界，以及人對待狗的情感和行為。(導演 / 廖敬堯)

The Taipei Animal Shelter is a public animal shelter that is home to more than a hundred stray dogs. The dogs that enter the shelter don't have names – but are merely given a set of numbers that mark its date of entry – until the day they leave the shelter. In their unforeseeable future, their departure may be marked by their adoption or perhaps even death.

In a society predominantly populated by man, why do shelters exist? Are they for the dogs or for us? (Director/ Liao ching-yao)

紀錄觀點 - 鑄字人

導演：王明霞

活字印刷曾是訊息傳遞的主宰，直到二十世紀網際網路的崛起，活版印刷正式宣告走入歷史。即便如此，世界各地仍有少數人，細心地保存活字工藝的一熄微亮星火，其中包括台灣的日星鑄字行。

透過本片，我們將看到台灣現存唯一活字店：日星鑄字行的現況和鑄造活字的工藝，同時也見證了鑄字人與一群熱情志工們，參與復刻華人世界珍貴正體楷書的計畫，以及眾人一同努力保存銅模，和成立活版印刷保存協會的過程。此外，影片也跟隨鑄字之人前往中國，拜訪資深字體設計師與雕刻活字的耆老，聆聽其對於文字的創造與實用之美的獨特見解，並走訪日本的百年活字店，廣泛瞭解活字的現況及文字的創造與實用之美。

The story of "The Lead Type Founder" tells from the last one Type Foundry- Ri Xing and the craftsman Chang Chieh-kuan in Taiwan.

Ri Xing was established in 1969; now still preserves three kinds of the original form of the simplified Chinese character letters. The copper molds which used to make letters are disfigured as forty years passed by, so CCK raise "Letterpress Rehabilitation Project" to renew the copper molds and digitize lead typefaces. Many volunteers come from Taiwan, France and Japan all join CCK's project; they wish to preserve the fading culture heritage for next generation.

Through this documentary, we also can see some old craftsmen and type designers in China and Tokyo, to see how they turn this culture industry to a modern art. Also learn to appreciate the unique principles of creating the original form of the simplified Chinese characters and the aesthetics of this fading craft.

司馬庫斯 森林共和國

海拔約 1500 公尺的司馬庫斯部落位於雪山山脈的山腰，這裡是臺灣珍貴的檜木林最重要的分佈地區之一，壯闊的巨木區中有著全國排名第二和第三名的巨木。此地動、植物種類繽紛，與泰雅族人的生活、文化息息相關。在部落通往巨木的步道上，存在相當特殊的景觀，像臺灣特有種鳥類「冠羽畫眉」就在此繁衍，牠們合作生殖、共同餵食幼雛的習性，恰與部落族人獨有的「共同經營」生活方式雷同！

本片聚焦於司馬庫斯豐富的動、植物生態，交織出部落族人的生命情境。

《司馬庫斯—森林共和國》也特別邀請了知名歌手溫嵐擔任旁白配音。溫嵐是出身新竹尖石鄉的泰雅族原住民，與司馬庫斯有深厚的生命情感與地緣關係。

全球視野

2013 年 CWF 天下經濟論壇

低成長時代, 亞洲的突破與轉型

2013 年天下經濟論壇聚焦的核心議題是, 全球經濟進入低成長, 如何在放緩的經濟步伐中, 重振增長, 策略轉型。

根據 IMF、世界銀行、各大全球研究機構預估, 2013 年全球經濟成長率為 3.9%。經濟風險深受兩項因素制約: 第一是需解決歐元區危機, 才能緩解對於亞洲的衝擊。第二是避免美國財政過度緊縮, 否則將影響全球商業與消費信心, 打擊亞洲的出口。

2008 金融風暴後, 亞洲成為世界成長的引擎, 5 年過後, 東北亞與中國經濟減速, 東協則是全球異軍突起的新市場。2012 年, 亞洲各國因領土爭議, 政治關係緊張, 但貿易卻更加緊密, 彼此互賴。

亞洲企業崛起, 成為彼此最強勁的競爭對手, 也是唇齒相依的供應鏈聯盟。亞洲經貿大競合的時代來臨, 企業將打造什麼競爭優勢? 天下經濟論壇為您搭起對話的平台, 一同尋找方向

兩岸 90 後

他們出生在最富裕的年代, 卻要面對被剝奪的未來

他們既理想又務實、自我又多元、百無禁忌更有「實踐爆炸」的行動力
台灣 308 萬、中國 1.9 億的 90 後
會如何改寫我們身處的時代?

1. 兩岸教室現場, 互評競爭力
一群炸彈世代正要進入社會, 兩岸 90 後也正要在人才競爭平台上被秤斤兩。兩岸 90 後競爭力, 有多少異同, 天下雜誌造訪兩岸的頂尖學府人民大學和台灣大學, 認識他們。

2. 大陸 90 後, 低齡國際化
2000 年時, 中國赴美讀大學人數僅一萬, 十一年後, 增加為七萬多人, 中國留學人口正在大幅度低齡化。極早國際化已改變他們的視野和格局。天下採訪團隊帶您深入北京..

3. 吃苦小皇帝, 大陸 90 後村官
兩岸媒體習慣為大陸 90 後, 冠上「小皇帝」, 因為他們在父母寵愛, 優渥物質條件下長大。帶您認識一位女孩張佑, 1990 年出生, 一年半前從北京中華女子學院畢業, 加入「村官」行列。

4. 大學小革命, 改變台灣 90 後

一場「無感革命」正在各地校園悄悄展開。政大廣告系教授陳文玲推動「大學小革命」，一年多來帶領上千位學生，幫助學生革去無感，走入社會，開展未來工作的可能性。

5. 90 後 挑戰中國禁忌

中國 90 後，開始有公民意識，作法上也很創新，有人開性商品店是爲了促成中國民主，有人選擇拍紀錄片伸張城市正義，他們都是用極戲謔方式，引人注目。

6. 挑戰無神論 中國 90 信仰大軍

三十年前，年輕人流行讀毛語錄，現在，中國 90 後讀起聖經。他們對外來宗教不再如此禁忌，大學裡流行起團契。讓我們進入 90 後信仰的世界。

7. 90 後不一樣的小老闆

不少 90 後選擇創業圓夢，加上大陸官方，從 2008 年啟動「創業帶動就業政策」，加快 90 後的創業風潮形成。有的念大二、大三時，就當起小老闆，在各自領域闖出一片天。

京劇名家：杜近芳

杜近芳，中國京劇院表演藝術家，出生於 1932 年，祖籍北京。她自幼隨律佩芳、陳世鼎、劉玉芳等學戲，1948 年拜王瑤卿爲師，後又拜梅蘭芳爲師。1951 年加入中國戲曲研究院京劇實驗工作團（後轉爲中國京劇院），長期與李少春、葉盛蘭、袁世海等藝術家同台合作，還曾問藝于王少卿、徐蘭沅、周昌泰、董妙香等。

杜近芳的藝術風格兼融梅（蘭芳）、王（瑤

卿）且有自己的創造，既有婀娜嬌豔之美，又具剛勁堅實之力。她的演唱音色甜美、圓潤清醇，真假聲結合，以聲傳情；吐字清晰，善於控制氣息、音量和節奏；舞臺形象秀麗典雅，刻畫人物栩栩如生。

她除擅演諸多梅派劇碼外，還有許多獨有劇碼，如：《柳蔭記》、《白蛇傳》、《謝瑤環》、《桃花扇》、《野豬林》、《蝴蝶杯》、《玉簪記》、《余賽花》、《桃花村》、《滿江紅》、《白毛女》、《紅色娘子軍》等。

中國文化

博覽中國

《博覽中國》DVD 改編自同名大型專題文化系列電視節目。該節目曾在美國斯柯拉（SCOLA）衛星電視網向北美地區播出，並在中國教育電視臺第二套節目播出，受到海內外觀眾的廣泛歡迎。

精選海外人士關注的中國文化焦點。

紀實的手法、實景拍攝、文史影像資料和情景再現等，引領觀眾深入體驗文化現象、理解中國文化。

外國人的視點、外國人主持、外國人採訪，以“老外”的獨特視角揭示文化現象背後所蘊涵的中國人的思想和精神面貌。

通過行業專家、文化現象當事人、普通旁觀者等不同身份人士的觀點和說法，對同一文化現象進行多角度的講述和詮釋。
